ROOSEVELT AS 'CAMPAIGNER' GUARDS PLANS

Newsmen's Questions as to 'Favored' Candidates Draw Presidential Chuckles.

'SPEECHES NOT PREPARED'

Observers See Renewal of Reorganization Fight on Trip Through West.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Chuckling at the political furore his impending trans-continental swing has created, President Roosevelt today kept his own counsel about any plans he may have on the road for injecting himself into Democratic primary contests.

"Consult an astrologist," was his advice to news men who sought some inkling regarding his attitude toward the candidacies of several senators up for re-election—all of whom had opposed his defeated plan to enlarge the supreme court.

Interest in Colorado.

And it appeared that some of the candidates wished they could get a bit of reliable advance information from an astrologist, or anyone else.

There was extreme interest, for example, as to what President Roosevelt intends to do or say when he reached Colorado on his way to the coast. Senator Alva Adams, up for renomination there, was one of the court bill opponents.

All the chief executive would say was that he had expressed no opinion so far to anyone on Adams' candidacy and didn't have the faintest idea what he would say when he stopped in the senator's state. Most observers believe the president at least will do nothing to hurt Adams' chances, and possibly may give him a boost despite the court plan opposition.

Silent on Indiana.

In similar fashion, Mr. Roosevelt declined to say what he thought of the about-face performed by the Indiana Democratic organization in offering Senator Frederick Van Nuys renomination. Up until a few days ago, Indiana powers were saying Van Nuys could not have it because he deserted the president on the court issue.

The president was also vague about whether he would stop in South Carolina next month on his way back home from the long trip that begins tomorrow. Those close to the White House have intimated Mr. Roosevelt intended to make a speech in the home state of Senator E. D. "Cotton Ed" Smith—still another opponent of the court bill.

London's Gossips Find Choice Bit In Count's Rival

(By International News Service)

LONDON — Revelation of the name of the society "gentleman in London" whom Count Kurt Haugwitz Reventlow allegedly wanted to "shoot like a dog" was seen today as a possibility when the count opens his defense July 13 in the sensational legal conflict with Countess Barbara.

The "gentleman," who was said to be the count's prospective pistol target, according to most reliable accounts, is one of the "most eligible" bachelors in Europe, if not in the entire world.

He was introduced to Countess Barbara by a relative of hers nearly a year ago, it was learned.

After her first serious quarrel with the count, Barbara saw the "gentleman" from time to time, but friends say he was far more interested in her than she in him.

Mayfair's newest pastime today was "naming the man" who, according to the story unfolded yesterday by Solicitor William W. Mitchell, demanded that the count challenge him to a duel.

OKAYS BUDGET

Council Approves '39 Figure Without Single Change.

Without a single change, city council last night approved the 1939 municipal budget and sent it to the county budget commission where it is expected to go through a pruning process.

Since council's finance committee had approved the budget and councilmen were familiar with its contents, the detailed budget wasn't read at last night's session. It calls for a total of $332,032 for the operating fund purposes and $130,450.43 for interest and bond retirement, a total of $462,857.43.

This figure is approximately $50,000 more than the 1938 appropriation and $6,000 less than the 1938 budget request.

Harvesting of Best Wheat Crop In Years Under Way

Binders Roll Across Richland Fields; Combines to Start Cutting and Threshing by End of Week.

Wheat binders rolled across Richland county's fields today as farmers began harvesting a grain crop that is expected to be one of the best in recent years.

If favorable weather continues, most of the wheat to be harvested with binders will be in the shock by the end of the week, County Agent George B. Ganyard said. Much of the grain in the northern section of the county will be harvested with combines, however, and it will not be cut and threshed until the last of the week or early next week, Ganyard predicted.

Grain Dead Ripe.

Threshing, which is already in progress in southern Ohio, probably will be started in this area within the next 10 days, farmers said.

Because of the heavy rains in recent weeks much of the wheat is dead ripe and in some places is showing damage by rust

While it is still too early to predict the size of the crop, Ganyard said indications are that production will be as high, or higher, than last year's yield which was better than average

Farmers in the county apparently are well supplied with labor, since requests for laborers are negligible, Oscar H Hoppe, manager of the Mansfield office of the National Re-employment agency, pointed out

Hoppe said dozens of men had applied for farm jobs, but the demand for rural help has been supplied from the unemployed industrial workers who live in the country and work in Mansfield when business is good.

450 GET WORK AS 2 WPA JOBS ARE LAUNCHED

400 Unemployed Taken Off City Relief Rolls for Opening of Road, Bridge Program.

BOTH START TOMORROW

50 Transferred From Bellville Project to Begin Woodland Water Improvement.

Nearly 450 men are scheduled to go to work tomorrow in Mansfield and Richland county as two major WPA projects get under way.

The county's $1,000,000 road and bridge program, which had been officially approved today by the comptroller general at Washington, will provide jobs for 388 men who have been unemployed, J. L. Kelly, sixth district WPA director, said today at Columbus.

$75,000 Water Job.

Fifty men will be transferred from the Bellville sewage project to the $75,000 Woodland waterworks project which is due to begin tomorrow along with the road and bridge program.

After work is started on the two projects, it will be expanded to employ nearly 1,000 men. Approximately 50 more will be used on the Woodland project and from 500 to 600 more on county roads and bridges and streets in Mansfield and Shelby, WPA officials said.

At the outset, workers will be assigned to road and bridge jobs in Madison, Butler, Washington and Worthington townships, County Engineer Howard C. Sword said. Later the county-wide program will include a number of townships and the cities of Mansfield and Shelby.

Includes Bridges.

Scheduled for improvement first are the North Bowman street road in Madison township ,the Dice road in Washington township, the Greenwich Townline road in Butler township, and a number of small bridges in Worthington township, the county engineer said.

Improvements will include widening and resurfacing of roads and construction of new concrete bridges and culverts.

Work on the Woodland project, which has been delayed while the city awaited shipment of pipe fittings, will start at the reservoir in Woodland and continue along Cook road.

The county will receive $699.25 in federal funds for its $1,000,000 program, and will contribute the difference in road equipment, materials and cash allocations from the road and bridge funds and townships and cities which have requested to be included in the blanket project.

Men employed on the WPA projects will be taken from relief rolls certified to WPA officials by Relief Director Earl Nist.

With the opening of the work relief program, the relief load in Mansfield and Madison township is expected to show a marked drop as scores of men are taken off relief and provided with jobs in the city and county.

FLAYS DAVEY'S 'HOT-MIX' STAND

Sawyer Aid Says Governor Indifferent To Findings.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Governor Davey was accused today by Arthur Limbach, vice chairman of the Sawyer-for-Governor committee, of manifesting indifference toward the findings of the six professors who investigated the affairs of the state highway department.

"The governor's indifference to his own investigators report makes a mockery out of government," said Limbach. "Ever since he has been in office when confronted with graft, corruption, and indictments because of irregularities in the departments of state under his control, his attitude has always been, as he now voices it, 'that is no concern of mine'."

HEAT'S ON AGAIN

Mercury Hits 85, Thundershowers In Prospect for Tonight.

Another heat wave was in the making today as the mercury moved up to 85 degrees at noon after nearly a week of moderate weather.

Local thundershowers are likely tonight and Thursday, the forecast said, but the weather for this area will be generally fair, it predicted. The top reading yesterday afternoon was 83 degrees, but that mark was passed at 11 a. m. today. The low last night was 56.

Try Again to Extend Hours of Liquor Sale

Permit Holders Submit Petition to Council, Ask to Operate Until 1:30 A. M.; City Fathers Refer It to Committee.

A new drive to set aside the present city ordinance governing the closing of places where liquor is sold was under way today, sponsored by the newly-organized Richland County Permit Holders association.

The association presented a petition to council last night, asking an extension of hours, and claiming that if its request was not granted, those members holding night club permits would have to suspend, and the city would suffer by being deprived of its share of their permit fees.

Their petition was referred to a special council committee—with the same membership as a previous special committee which turned down an earlier request for revision of the ordinance. Russell D. Porch heads the committee Other members are Lester D. Hunter and James E. Crum.

The law as it now stands specifies that no liquor can be sold after 1 a. m. on week days and midnight on Saturdays.

The permit holders asked that they be allowed to remain open until 1:30 a. m. week days and Saturdays.

This would affect holders of D-3A and D-5 (night club) permits, since they are the only ones now staying open after midnight, even on week days. Holders of D-3 permits now close at midnight every night.

Members of the association's committee, which presented the petition to council were Peter DiSanze, manager of the Greystone; Peter Miller, manager of the Silver Slipper, Willis Wappner, manager of the Wonder Bar, and John P. Hergatt, manager of the Steak Tavern.

The committee made no attemp. to supplement its petition with arguments on behalf of its proposal last night. However, members later pointed out that extension of the closing hour would give night club permit

Clear Skies Greet Jammed Stands at All-Star Classic

BULLETIN

CINCINNATI—The National League was leading, 1 to 0, in the third inning in the All-Star game.

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Bright sunshine and blue skies greeted baseball fans today as they streamed to Crosley Field for the annual all-star game. Clouds marked the early morning and for a time there appeared the possibility of showers.

At 1:30 o'clock the teams come together, with Lefty Gomez of the New York Yankees smoking them across for the American leaguers, and his opponent the sensational young Johnny Vander Meer of Cincinnati's own Reds It is the fifth time that Gomez has started for the Americans, and he has three victories to his credit. Vander Meer, the only pitcher in big league history to hurl two no-hit, no-run games in succession, is making his first appearance in the mid-season classic.

There wasn't any doubt about the crowd. The home-like little field was certain to be packed to its 28,000 capacity, with the last 2,000 standing in the aisles.

20-MINUTE BUS SCHEDULE OK'D

Council Grants Request of Transit Company; Routes to Be Shifted, Too.

The Mansfield Rapid Transit company announced today, with the approval of council, a series of changes in its transportation service that will bring about city-wide uniform 20-minute service.

The changes to be made include a complete new schedule of hours, the elimination of lay-overs at the ends of the lines, some rerouting and extensions to the present service

H. W. Arnold, president of the firm, said today that the company hoped to effect the changes by Saturday.

City council last night approved recommendations of the utilities committee, headed by Russell D. Porch, that the company's request, made two weeks ago, be granted.

The recommendation was presented to council by Lester D. Hunter, another member of the committee in the absence of Porch who could not attend last night's session because of illness. The other member of the committee, Arthur L. Croak, was out of the city.

Under the new plan, a uniform 20-minute schedule will be maintained on all lines daily from 5:30 a. m. to 6:30 p. m. with 30-minute service from 6:30 p. m. to 11 p. m. Sundays the schedule calls for 30-minute service throughout the day beginning at 7 a. m.

Blecker Appointed for Four More Years on Racing Board

George H. Blecker, Mansfield attorney and racing enthusiast, today was reappointed to the state racing commission by Gov. Martin L Davey. United Press dispatches from Columbus said this afternoon.

It was Blecker's third appointment. Named by former Governor George White for a one-year term, when the racing commission was created in 1933, Blecker was appointed for a four-year term in 1934 by Davey. Today's appointment was also for a four-year term, and will not expire until 1942

First dispatches did not say whether Blecker had been renamed chairman, a post he has held for the past four years.

Blecker was informed of his reappointment by The News-Journal this afternoon. He said he did not know whether the reappointment to the commission included the chairmanship. The commission has four members.

The commission establishes all rules governing both running and harness racing in Ohio, and maintains a staff of 10 inspectors.

Blecker, as a member of the commission, took a leading part in establishing the "saliva test" to determine whether a horse may have been doped in the event of a disputed race.

The commission also supervises all pari-mutuel betting in Ohio, under a system whereby part of the money wagered goes into the state treasury.

The other members of the board in addition to Blecker are Randall H. Anderson, Youngstown; Henry Koehler, Hamilton, and Louis Allen, Wadsworth. William McKown of Ironton is secretary.

60,000 Homes Under 10 Feet of Water, Hundreds Missing in Eastern Japan.

SHIPS LEARN OF DISASTER

40 Europeans Among Victims, Wireless Dispatches to San Francisco Say.

(By United Press)

SAN FRANCISCO—Approximately 40 Europeans and nearly 600 school children died when three water reservoirs collapsed sending a deluge of water down the streets of Kobe, Japan, radio operators aboard the S. S. President Cleveland, anchored there, advised Globe wireless offices here today.

The torrent which placed Kobe's Broadway, the Motomachi, under 10 feet of water, left "death, disaster and destruction" in its wake, the Dollar Line vessel's radioman said.

The disaster, according to Globe, occurred at 9 a. m., July 5.

"Thousands of Japanese are said to be drowned," the brief messages from Kobe said.

Water Supply Gone.

Passengers aboard the vessel who were to have disembarked at Kobe were marooned aboard the steamer. The ship is commanded by Capt. Otto Kohlmeister.

Estep, accompanied by the second radioman, Carl Lowe, toured the stricken area yesterday, he reported, and found the main street "a torrent of raging water."

"Thousands of Japanese are said to have been drowned," the Cleveland's messages reported.

Rail and wire communication between Kobe and Tokyo was paralyzed. Highways were impassable.

Little damage, however, was reported in the great industrial city of Osaka—a chief munitions making center—adjacent to Kobe.

The Kobe prefectural government estimated that 136 bodies had been recovered in the province. The government also reported a preliminary estimate of 1,200 houses destroyed throughout the province, and 60,000 houses inundated to a depth of more than 10 feet.

Hundreds Missing.

The company gave employes a two weeks' bonus last July and again at Christmas, besides matching the three per cent Christmas savings of each worker.

---This Is the Way of Dictators

(By International News Service)

LONDON—Joseph Stalin's newest Soviet purge has hit one of communism's most prominent figures—Gregory Dimitrov, secretary of the Communist International—according to reports reaching London today via Warsaw.

Dimitrov, one of the acquitted defendants in the reichstag fire trial, was arrested on a charge of misleading Stalin regarding the Spanish situation, and of spending too much money to help the Barcelona government, said a Warsaw dispatch in the Daily Mirror.

The reported arrest of Dimitrov coincided with a flood of rumors regarding a diplomatic purge which allegedly has imperilled Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinov and his British-born wife.

Jacob Davtyan, until recently the Soviet ambassador to Warsaw, committed suicide in a Moscow prison after he was questioned regarding alleged "Trotskyite" activities, the Daily Express said.

Davtyan's wife, the famous opera singer Mme Maksokova, was reported banished to Siberia.

According to the Daily Mirror account, two of Dimitrov's propaganda organizers in foreign countries already have been shot.

LONDON—(INS)—Eight hundred more Jews and Jewesses in Vienna attempted suicide in the last few days, and a majority succeeded, a dispatch in the Daily Telegraph reported today.

Last Saturday—a day on which no Jewish funerals would take place under normal circumstances—rabbis were so busy officiating at death ceremonies they could not finish their tasks before sunset, the Telegraph's correspondent said.

The new wave of suicides was said to be a sequel to Nazi Commissioner Joseph Buerckel's order that all Jews must be dismissed from their jobs. The order was issued two weeks ago, but since repudiated.

32 Nations Hunt Haven for Jews of Germany, Austria

URGE BRITAIN TO OPEN GATES OF PALESTINE

Conference in France Also Considers Help for Spain's War Refugees.

(By United Press)

At the invitation of President Roosevelt, delegates of 32 nations met at Evian, France, today to consider means of opening their borders to destitute refugees, including homeless Jews from Germany and Austria.

Of the 32 nations, 21 were from North and South America, traditional refuge of the oppressed. Germany was not represented, nor was Italy.

Jewish leaders urged the conference to persuade Great Britain to open Palestine to more extensive Jewish settlement in the ancient cradle of their race. Even as the delegates met, however, news was received from Palestine of further grave disorders between Arabs and Jews, so that it seemed unlikely Britain would want to antagonize the Arabs further by admitting more Jews.

Study Spanish War.

The problem of aiding refugees from war-torn Spain also was before the conference. It was considered certain that if the insurgents capture Valencia and then force the capitulation of Barcelona or come to terms with the Catalonians, ending the war, there will be thousands of loyalists attempting to flee abroad.

The insurgent drive on Valencia continued its seemingly inevitable course, the nationalists driving steadily down the eastern coast, methodically capturing towns and consolidating for renewed thrusts.

In the Orient, the undeclared war between Japan and China ended its first year and it was estimated that the war so far has cost more than 1,000,000 lives, as well as incalculable destruction.

Open 3-Way Drive.

The Japanese, having captured Hukow on the Yangtse river, opened a fierce three-point drive to crush the last Chinese resistance in the defense of Hankow, the temporary capital. Japanese airplanes blasted a way for the troops, meeting with little resistance because the best of China's first-line planes had been annihilated in a great aerial battle on Sunday.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek observed the war anniversary with a statement directed to the Japanese people and obviously designed to bolster Chinese morale and national feeling.

"Do you know that your army has become the most barbarous and most cruel force of destruction in the world?" Chiang asked the Japanese.

Hunts for Tipsy Driver But Finds Boy, 9, at Wheel

When Corporal Scott B. Radcliffe of the state highway patrol started out on a search for an intoxicated motorist Sunday he wasn't surprised to find the car weaving down the road, but he did get a surprise when he approached the driver for his operator's license.

For the driver wasn't intoxicated but a nine-year-old boy who was having difficulty keeping the large sedan on the road. The youth's father, holding a three-year-old son on his lap, was asleep in the other corner of the front seat.

Radcliffe loaded all three, along with their dog into the patrol car and brought them to the Mansfield police headquarters.

The man, Neal Anderson, R. D. 2, Caledonia, was charged with permitting a minor to operate a motor vehicle and the young driver with his brother and their pet dog were taken home by the officer.

Arraigned in municipal court yesterday, Anderson pleaded guilty to the charge and was fined $25 and costs. He testified that he had permitted the boy to drive when he became sleepy.

GUNS BARK IN BLOODY HARLAN

(By United Press)

HARLAN, Ky.—Lee Fleenor, 34, a defendant in the Harlan county mine conspiracy trial, was held today on a charge of having shot and seriously wounded Charles Reno, 40, paroled recently after having served four years in prison for the slaying of Fleenor's father.

Reno and Fleenor met last night at Molus, a mining community 14 miles west of Harlan. Fleenor told Sheriff C. F. Ball he had stopped at a store to buy some cigarets.

"Reno jumped from behind a car and fired several shots at me," he said. "I returned the fire."

Sheriff Ball said witnesses had told him that Fleenor had fired at Reno "without warning."

Reno was shot in the abdomen, neck and shoulder. His condition was grave and little hope was held for his recovery.

He was found guilty on a charge of manslaughter in the slaying of Bird Fleenor, Lee's father, killed in 1933 only half a mile from the scene of last night's shooting. Reno was sentenced to eight years in the penitentiary.

Lee Fleenor was convicted in 1934 of having killed Deputy Sheriff Bige Gross in the Harlan courthouse. He was sentenced to serve 13 years in prison. He was pardoned five years ago by Gov. Ruby Laffoon.

CITY TO ISSUE $9,000 IN BONDS TO BUILD STORM WATER SEWERS

Torrents of complaints that have plagued city officials for the past year because of flooded cellars following heavy rains will be partially alleviated by action taken by council last night approving the issuance of $9,000 in general bonds for the construction of storm water sewers on 14 city streets.

Council's finance committee three months ago recommended the issuance of the bonds for the improvements to be included in the $30,000 that can be issued within the 10-mill limitation allowed by law without submitting them to the voters.

The legislation was held up, however, until the sewer committee and city engineers had worked on the plans, finally selecting for improvement the streets on which the conditions were considered the worst.

The plans call for the construction of storm sewers, part of which will be built by WPA and part by private contract, on Coleman road, Chilton avenue, Wise avenue, West Third street, alley between Glenwood boulevard and Stewart avenue, Cleveland avenue, South Park street, and South Diamond street, Hemlock alley, St. Clair and McPherson street, Crescent road and Lexington avenue and Carpenter road, Johns avenue and Bowman street, Crescent road and Shepard road through to Lexington avenue, and Park avenue west at the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

SHOW FILM

Red Cross Accident Picture to Be Viewed Tonight.

The first showing of the new national Red Cross film, "Why Not Live," will take place tonight at the public opening of the new emergency first aid station, at Sutter's filling station, on Route 42 at the intersection of Lexington avenue and Cook road.

The one-reel film shows several kinds of accidents and first aid treatment for everything from snake bites to auto crashes. It will be shown throughout the county in the next few months.

The new station will be opened at 7 p. m. with Lewis M. Campbell, chairman of Red Cross first aid, in charge. Six persons at the station and in the immediate neighborhood have been trained to administer first aid after an accident.

Three other stations will be opened this summer. The next one is scheduled to open July 13 at Roxy's Inn, where seven persons have been trained.

U. S. TO BORROW 200 MILLIONS FOR LOAN FUND

Note Issue Decided Upon as Loan Applications Pour in for Action by RFC.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — With small and large industry clamoring for government loans, the administration today moved to provide the Reconstruction Finance Corporation with fresh money to meet the demand.

Following a conference between RFC Chairman Jesse H. Jones and treasury officials it was decided to issue $200,000,000 of government-guaranteed notes to the public as a means of raising this amount of new capital for lending purposes.

This note issue will be offered investors on July 20 and will mature in three years. The interest rate has not been determined.

Large Borrowing Ahead.

The new offering is a forerunner to a resumption of large-scale public borrowing by the government during the next 12 months. RFC officials revealed further flotations of securities to augment the corporation's cash balance would be undertaken "as needed."

As part of the administration's recovery campaign, the RFC early this year was ordered to resume loans to industries. This step was taken when small business men deluged the government with complaints that they were unable to obtain credit from private banking sources.

Latest RFC statistics show that 997 loans to business firms have been authorized since Feb. 20, the date on which this type of lending was continued. These loans involve commitments of $79,000,000.

Although the corporation is trying to encourage private banks to co-operate in making these business advances, only $9,500,000 has been offered by these institutions up to now, approximately 2,700 applications for loans are in the hands of RFC officials awaiting action. Approval of these would entail an outlay of another $82,700,000.

Demand for railroad loans also is continuing. In its report for May, the RFC showed $16,221,000 had been allocated to the carriers with additional millions still being sought.

GEN. JOHNSON:

It's About Time We Did Something About Seized Oil Property in Mexico

—By HUGH S. JOHNSON

BETHANY BEACH, Del.—Mexico hasn't done a thing about paying for the foreign oil properties she seized. She is selling oil on a barter basis to Germany and Italy, which is to say she is not getting much money for it—mostly merchandise and machinery which this country used to sell to Mexico.

Many people seem to think that some kind of offer to pay has been made by President Cardenas and rejected. My information is that only the most tentative kind of an offer has been made to permit the dispossessed companies to have 20 per cent of their own oil as and when it is withdrawn from the earth—a suggestion that can scarcely be considered as payment.

The oil was taken because of a refusal by the companies to adopt fantastic labor condition as to wages, hours and union management of the properties. They were cynically impossible and since the seizure no such idyllic terms have been given the workers.

* * *

Government simply hasn't got any money to pay workers or for any other purpose. A recent attempt to float an internal loan was almost a complete failure. With the wholesale seizure of private foreign property, nobody outside her borders will either lend or invest a cent in Mexico.

There is a somewhat similar leftist movement in nearly all of the other Latin-American countries. Legislation similar to that under which Mexico seized, these oil properties is being proposed in more than one. Why shouldn't such property be taken if the government whose companies suffer makes no complaint?

That is a purely rhetorical question with an obvious answer. These are nearly all countries of tremendous but undeveloped natural resources. They simply cannot progress without foreign trade, loans and investment—any more than this country could have developed without such assistance. Such seizure of properties without paying for them is a swift and certain way completely to dry up international intercourse, whether commercial or financial.

* * *

If there is anything realistic about the good neighbor policy, it will lean across the back fence and give Senor Cardenas some friendly advice. No, we are not going to send any ships or soldiers to save anybody's oily dollars, but there are plenty of other things we could and should in good conscience do to prevent a paralysis of economic relations.

The public utterances of our ambassador to Mexico, Josephus Daniels, have approved the general course of Cardenas. Nothing that our state department has uttered has been more robust than a tap so gentle and tentative that Mr. Cardenas probably considered it an encouraging slap on the shoulder rather than a disapproving kick in the pants.

His attitude or ours is no service to world peace and prosperity to Mexico herself, and certainly none to this country. It seems to be inspired in part by the administration's domestic labor policy and its general hostility to business. That is not excuse enough for this unwise excess of timidity.

Hollywood Speaks---

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Maude Adams, in life as legendary a figure of the theater as Bernhardt and Duse in death, will be making her first screen appearance this year, but behind it will lie years of interest in films as a dramatic medium.

The slim girl who is still "Peter Pan" in the eyes of an older generation is now a matronly woman of 65. She is alert and interested in the "new" and ready to undertake a personal role in the art that was yet unknown when she was born.

For years Hollywoood has offered her screen opportunities, but Producer David O. Selznick was the first to get her signature on a contract. Considering that Miss Adams was the elusive Garbo of her era—a brilliant star before the footlights but a shadowy figure off stage—all Hollywood looks upon her capitulation to films as a triumph.

* * *

Whether her work in Hollywood will affect her status as the theater's No. 1 recluse was not determined by her recent screen-testing visit. Workers reported her not the least shy, either before screen or still cameras, and said she was enthusiastic over her "new adventure." But of the many requested interviews, none materialized. The actress, of course, was very busy with her tests, and left shortly for the east.

It was as a technician, a side of her activities little known to the thousands who claimed her as the heroine of Barrie's best known plays, that she first became interested in films. Retiring completely from the stage in 1917, two years after her producer, Charles Frohman, died in the sinking of the Lusitania, Miss Adams was out of the public eye until 1931, when she appeared briefly in Cleveland in "The Merchant of Venice."

However, early in her retirement, at the suggestion of a friend, she had asked the manager of a theater to show her his film projector and explain its workings. Her interest turned to the possibilities of color films. When she learned that there was no artificial light of sufficient power to take colored pictures at the speed necessary for movies, she took up the study of lighting.

* * *

At the time she was convalescing from the illness that had led to retirement, and was desperately in need of some new interest not too distant from her own dramatic field. The next two years she spent in Schenectady's electrical laboratories, where facilities for experiment were arranged for her. With Dr. Perley Gordon Nutting, she worked on problems of incandescent lighting, and Dr. Willis Rodney Whitney, of the Research Laboratory, gave aid. Finally a new and powerful lamp, fore-runner of the "inkies" used on sound stages today, was developed.

Miss Adams' next film task was in collaboration with Robert J. Flaherty, the director who made "Nanook of the North." They made a short film, dealing with pottery, that is now in the Metropolitan museum as an example of perfect film lighting.

The actress, whose home is on Long Island, gradually has lessened her retirement, although she never returned to Broadway. Work in little theaters, on the air and as director of drama at Stephens college in Missouri brought her occasionally into the headlines.

But as she prepares for Hollywood the spotlight falls on her own declaration, written ten years ago:

"Life is still full of adventure. There is something exciting in challenging the years to come."

And in Challenging Hollywood too, she might add now.

You may confuse Bing Crosby's singing or Rudy Vallee's with that of other crooners, but you can't mistake that of Johnny "Scat" Davis.

CHISELERS AND POLITICS HIT BY RELIEF PLAN

Program Now Before Davey Would Prosecute Those Illegally Getting Aid.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Elimination of relief chiseling and protection of clients from political coercion are the chief aims of the new relief administration bill now awaiting Gov. Martin L. Davey's approval.

The state relief director and the state auditor are given virtually unlimited powers in dealing with chiseling. Any relief client found accepting relief when not entitled to it may be cut off the rolls and forced to return sums illegally obtained. They also are subject to $100 fine and six months' imprisonment for making false statements to get relief aid.

The same penalties apply to any person connected with the relief administration who knowingly makes false statements in order to list a person on relief rolls, and to persons or firms giving cash on relief orders.

Intended to prevent administration of relief from becoming entwined in politics, the new law would impose a maximum fine of $100 and six months' imprisonment for any official or employe of a relief administration attempting to influence a client to vote for any candidate.

Would Get Credit Rating.

Another new phase of relief administration would be the authority of the state auditor to purchase credit ratings of those receiving or applying for aid, to assist independent investigations which he may choose to make. A sum of $100,000 was voted by the legislature to the state auditor to investigate individual relief clients.

On certification by the auditor that a relief client is not entitled to aid, he would be removed from the list immediately. The auditor also must audit all relief obligations before the money is paid. He also must withhold funds from any county until receiving notice from the state relief director that the county and other local relief authorities have complied with all requirements.

The relief director would have authority to withhold distribution of state funds until local authorities have complied with his regulations, in furnishing whatsoever information required by him. If the local authorities are dissatisfied with his rulings, they may appeal to a board composed of the state auditor, treasurer and superintendent of the budget.

Aliens, in order to obtain relief, must furnish authorities with complete data concerning their entry into this country. If an alien has entered illegally, he would be denied aid.

All relief checks must be called for in person, unless the state auditor deems it impractical or the recipient is unable to call in person. Each client must restate his financial condition under oath every three months.

The relief director, who would function for nine months, would receive a salary of $400 a month. He could have not more than two assistants at maximum salaries of $200 a month. Other employes would be limited to $150 a month. Total local administrative costs would be limited to 12 per cent of the amount spent for relief.

holders more time to realize a profit on their $1,000 permits, and termed the present ordinance unfair, because it allowed holders of less costly permits to remain open the same hours, without the expense of night club entertainment.

The ordinance setting closing hours was passed in January, 1935, but was not strictly enforced until last December. Shortly after enforcement was ordered, and Police Chief Meade K. Bates instructed to see that the hours were strictly observed, permit holders, acting then as individuals, sought to have the ordinance revised, and their petition referred to the same committee that is now considering the new petition. After lengthy study of the problem, during which they found that the county's three judges and numerous church groups were opposed to any extension, the committee reported adversely on the petition.

MILK ORDINANCE UP FOR DEBATE

Producers to Air Differences Over Rigid Requirements at Meeting Monday.

Richland county milk producers will meet Monday night July 11, at the courthouse to discuss their differences over the enforcement of the Mansfield board of health's milk ordinance, Dale M. Dohner, manager of the Richland County Milk Producers association, said today.

Called by the board of directors of the association at the request of a group of producers who oppose the ordinance, the session will serve to bring a better understand between the opposing groups of county producers, Dohner said.

M. R. Moomaw, manager of the Stark county producers, has been invited to speak at the meeting, Clarence Mowry, president of the association, will preside.

A number of the 235 producers in the association and independent producers have protested against the rigid sanitation requirements of the board of health and have asked that the association start legal action to enjoin the board from enforcing its rules.

At a previous meeting, the association directors refused to enter into the fight against the ordinance.

HOLDS COUNTY OFFICERS PAID FUNDS TO WIVES

Examiner Says $28,800 Due From Pike Officials for Illegal Spending.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Payment for unrendered services, interest in official contracts, and payment of private telephone calls by public officials swelled to $28,805 findings for recovery by State Examiner W. H. Howland against Pike county officials and others in a report filed with the state inspection bureau today.

Former Common Pleas Judge George D. Nye, Democratic political leader of the county, was asked to return $939 which allegedly was paid by the county for the judge's private long distance telephone conversations to politicians and others.

Numerous calls were said to have been made to Democratic State Chairman Francis Poulson. Among other politicians allegedly called were John F. Nolan of Steubenville, Dr. Reuben Hilty of Toledo, Albert Horstman of Dayton and Walter F. Heer of Columbus. Several calls were listed to Pete Stinchcomb, warehouseman for the state liquor department.

Must Pay $350.

The former judge and his mother, Mrs. Cresse Nye, were called upon to repay the county $350 for a 60-foot steel bridge sold to the county allegedly through negotiations by the jurist.

The examiner developed that the bridge had been purchased by George B. Nye, father of the ex-judge and former political leader of the county, in 1924 for $50 from the Ross county commissioners. The sale to Poke county was made in April 1936.

The examiner said the bridge was used on a private road to the ex-judge's summer home and that when Lake White was filled with water the bridge was partly submerged. Judge Nye was the chief promoter of the lake.

Examiner Howland said he found the bridge dismantled on the Lake White company's property, partly covered with weeds. He said the county engineer told him that only a small piece of the bridge had been used by the county for repair work.

A finding for recovery of $4,850 was made against Edith Pennisten, wife of H. O. Pennisten, clerk of courts, who allegedly was paid as a clerk in the office. The examiner said he could find no evidence, however, of her having done any work.

Similar findings were made against Edith Dixon, wife of County Recorder George Dixon for $2,875; Aulta Sheridan, wife of County Engineer W. L. Sheridan, for $1,375, and Mrs. Mabel Blair Waugh, sister of Probate Judge William H. Acord, for $1,200.

For having interest in contracts, the following were ordered to return the sums listed: Forest Roberts, member of the Soldiers' Relief commission, $5,095; Clarence Vallery, members of the Waverly rural district board of education, $2,112, and Peter and J. A. Rapp, for $2,239. J. A. Rapp, county treasurer, was part owner of a company furnishing road guard rail to the county.

TIE VOTE KILLS GAS MEASURE IN SECOND READING

Shelby Council Fails to Give Three-Year Straight Rate Ordinance Majority.

SHELBY—Councilman Charles Swanger's proposed three-year straight rate gas contract ordinance came to an untimely end last night, when it failed to get by a second reading.

The vote was 2-2, with Councilman Kenneth Rothlisberger absent. Swanger voted for passage to a third reading, as did Councilman John Chew. Opposing it were Councilmen Chester Bell and C. E. Morris. Shelby's charter provides that a measure must have a majority vote.

Thus, after more than two months of discussion, council now has no rate ordinance before it, and consumers will continue to pay 71 cents per thousand—the rate per thousand on a basis of 5,000 feet used per month under the fifth year schedule of an expired five-year contract—until a new ordinance is approved.

Bell explained his negative vote by saying he was "afraid the gas company (Ohio Fuel Gas company) would appeal such a low rate to the utilities commission."

Cites Federal Aid.

Swanger countered with the assertion that he thought "the rates are not low enough, since the federal government has been given power to investigate interstate rates." He referred to the bill recently passed by congress and approved by President Roosevelt under which the federal power commission has authority to determine the fairness of interstate gas rate charges. Ohio Fuel bases its rates on the price it pays an affiliated company in West Virginia.

The 68-cent ordinance passed its first reading. Last night, Kenneth Gallant, Shelby manager of the company, told councilmen the company would not agree to the ordinance, which is higher than the recently enacted Mansfield ordinance, and to which the company has not as yet said it would not agree.

Councilmen did not indicate last night what their next step might be, it then seemed little likelihood that Swanger's ordinance would be reintroduced.

32 Nations Hunt Haven for Jews of Germany, Austria

URGE BRITAIN TO OPEN GATES OF PALESTINE

Conference in France Also Considers Help for Spain's War Refugees.

(By United Press)

At the invitation of President Roosevelt, delegates of 32 nations met at Evian, France, today to consider means of opening their borders to destitute refugees, including homeless Jews from Germany and Austria.

Of the 32 nations, 21 were from North and South America, traditional refuge of the oppressed. Germany was not represented, nor was Italy.

Jewish leaders urged the conference to persuade Great Britain to open Palestine to more extensive Jewish settlement in the ancient cradle of their race. Even as the delegates met, however, news was received from Palestine of further grave disorders between Arabs and Jews, so that it seemed unlikely Britain would want to antagonize the Arabs further by admitting more Jews.

Study Spanish War.

The problem of aiding refugees from war-torn Spain also was before the conference. It was considered certain that if the insurgents capture Valencia and then force the capitulation of Barcelona or come to terms with the Catalonians, ending the war, there will be thousands of loyalists attempting to flee abroad.

The insurgent drive on Valencia continued its seemingly inevitable course, the nationalists driving steadily down the eastern coast, methodically capturing towns and consolidating for renewed thrusts.

In the Orient, the undeclared war between Japan and China ended its first year and it was estimated that the war so far has cost more than 1,000,000 lives, as well as incalculable destruction.

Open 3-Way Drive.

The Japanese, having captured Hukow on the Yangtse river, opened a fierce three-point drive to crush the last Chinese resistance in the defense of Hankow, the temporary capital. Japanese airplanes blasted a way for the troops, meeting with little resistance because the best of China's first-line planes had been annihilated in a great aerial battle on Sunday.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek observed the war anniversary with a statement directed to the Japanese people and obviously designed to bolster Chinese morale and national feeling.

"Do you know that your army has become the most barbarous and most cruel force of destruction in the world?" Chiang asked the Japanese.

Hunts for Tipsy Driver But Finds Boy, 9, at Wheel

When Corporal Scott B. Radcliffe of the state highway patrol started out on a search for an intoxicated motorist Sunday he wasn't surprised to find the car weaving down the road, but he did get a surprise when he approached the driver for his operator's license.

For the driver wasn't intoxicated but a nine-year-old boy who was having difficulty keeping the large sedan on the road. The youth's father, holding a three-year-old son on his lap, was asleep in the other corner of the front seat.

Radcliffe loaded all three, along with their dog into the patrol car and brought them to the Mansfield police headquarters.

The man, Neal Anderson, R. D. 2, Caledonia, was charged with permitting a minor to operate a motor vehicle and the young driver with his brother and their pet dog were taken home by the officer.

Arraigned in municipal court yesterday, Anderson pleaded guilty to the charge and was fined $25 and costs. He testified that he had permitted the boy to drive when he became sleepy.

GUNS BARK IN BLOODY HARLAN

(By United Press)

HARLAN, Ky.—Lee Fleenor, 34, a defendant in the Harlan county mine conspiracy trial, was held today on a charge of having shot and seriously wounded Charles Reno, 40, paroled recently after having served four years in prison for the slaying of Fleenor's father.

Reno and Fleenor met last night at Molus, a mining community 14 miles west of Harlan. Fleenor told Sheriff C. F. Ball he had stopped at a store to buy some cigarets.

"Reno jumped from behind a car and fired several shots at me," he said. "I returned the fire."

Sheriff Ball said witnesses had told him that Fleenor had fired at Reno "without warning."

Reno was shot in the abdomen, neck and shoulder. His condition was grave and little hope was held for his recovery.

He was found guilty on a charge of manslaughter in the slaying of Bird Fleenor, Lee's father, killed in 1933 only half a mile from the scene of last night's shooting. Reno was sentenced to eight years in the penitentiary.

Lee Fleenor was convicted in 1934 of having killed Deputy Sheriff Bige Gross in the Harlan courthouse. He was sentenced to serve 13 years in prison. He was pardoned five years ago by Gov. Ruby Laffoon.

CITY TO ISSUE $9,000 IN BONDS TO BUILD STORM WATER SEWERS

Torrents of complaints that have plagued city officials for the past year because of flooded cellars following heavy rains will be partially alleviated by action taken by council last night approving the issuance of $9,000 in general bonds for the construction of storm water sewers on 14 city streets.

Council's finance committee three months ago recommended the issuance of the bonds for the improvements to be included in the $30,000 that can be issued within the 10-mill limitation allowed by law without submitting them to the voters.

The legislation was held up, however, until the sewer committee and city engineers had worked on the plans, finally selecting for improvement the streets on which the conditions were considered the worst.

The plans call for the construction of storm sewers, part of which will be built by WPA and part by private contract, on Coleman road, Chilton avenue, Wise avenue, West Third street, alley between Glenwood boulevard and stewart avenue, Cleveland avenue, South Park street, and South Diamond street, Hemlock alley, St. Clair and McPherson street, Crescent road and Lexington avenue and Carpenter road, Johns avenue and Bowman street, Crescent road and Shepard road through to Lexington avenue, and Park avenue west at the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

The new station will be opened at 7 p. m with Lewis M. Campbell, chairman of Red Cross first aid, in charge. Six persons at the station and in the immediate neighborhood have been trained to administer first aid after an accident.

Three other stations will be opened this summer. The next one is scheduled to open July 13 at Roxy's Inn, where seven persons have been trained.

U. S. TO BORROW 200 MILLIONS FOR LOAN FUND

Note Issue Decided Upon as Loan Applications Pour in for Action by RFC.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — With small and large industry clamoring for government loans, the administration today moved to provide the Reconstruction Finance Corporation with fresh money to meet the demand.

Following a conference between RFC Chairman Jesse H. Jones and treasury officials it was decided to issue $200,000,000 of government-guaranteed notes to the public as a means of raising this amount of new capital for lending purposes.

This note issue will be offered investors on July 20 and will mature in three years. The interest rate has not been determined.

Large Borrowing Ahead.

The new offering is a forerunner to a resumption of large-scale public borrowing by the government during the next 12 months. RFC officials revealed further flotations of securities to augment the corporation's cash balance would be undertaken "as needed."

As part of the administration's recovery campaign, the RFC early this year was ordered to resume loans to industries. This step was taken when small business men deluged the government with complaints that they were unable to obtain credit from private banking sources.

Latest RFC statistics show that 997 loans to business firms have been authorized since Feb. 20, the date on which this type of lending was continued. These loans involve commitments of $79,000,000.

Although the corporation is trying to encourage private banks to co-operate in making these business advances, only $9,500,000 has been offered by these institutions up to now, approximately 2,700 applications for loans are in the hands of RFC officials awaiting action. Approval of these would entail an outlay of another $82,700,000.

Demand for railroad loans also is continuing. In its report for May, the RFC showed $16,221,000 had been allocated to the carriers with additional millions still being sought.

GEN. JOHNSON:

It's About Time We Did Something About Seized Oil Property in Mexico

—By HUGH S. JOHNSON

BETHANY BEACH, Del.—Mexico hasn't done a thing about paying for the foreign oil properties she seized. She is selling oil on a barter basis to Germany and Italy, which is to say she is not getting much money for it—mostly merchandise and machinery which this country used to sell to Mexico.

Many people seem to think that some kind of offer to pay has been made by President Cardenas and rejected. My information is that only the most tentative kind of an offer has been made to permit the dispossessed companies to have 20 per cent of their own oil as and when it is withdrawn from the earth—a suggestion that can scarcely be considered as payment.

The oil was taken because of a refusal by the companies to adopt fantastic labor condition as to wages, hours and union management of the properties. They were cynically impossible and since the seizure no such idyllic terms have been given the workers.

* * *

Government simply hasn't got any money to pay workers or for any other purpose. A recent attempt to float an internal loan was almost a complete failure. With the wholesale seizure of private foreign property, nobody outside her borders will either lend or invest a cent in Mexico.

There is a somewhat similar leftist movement in nearly all of the other Latin-American countries. Legislation similar to that under which Mexico seized, these oil properties is being proposed in more than one. Why shouldn't such property be taken if the government whose companies suffer makes no complaint?

That is a purely rhetorical question with an obvious answer. These are nearly all countries of tremendous but undeveloped natural resources. They simply cannot progress without foreign trade, loans and investment—any more than this country could have developed without such assistance. Such seizure of properties without paying for them is a swift and certain way completely to dry up international intercourse, whether commercial or financial.

* * *

If there is anything realistic about the good neighbor policy, it will lean across the back fence and give Senor Cardenas some friendly advice. No, we are not going to send any ships or soldiers to save anybody's oily dollars, but there are plenty of other things we could and should in good conscience do to prevent a paralysis of economic relations.

The public utterances of our ambassador to Mexico, Josephus Daniels, have approved the general course of Cardenas. Nothing that our state department has uttered has been more robust than a tap so gentle and tentative that Mr. Cardenas probably considered it an encouraging slap on the shoulder rather than a disapproving kick in the pants.

His attitude or ours is no service to world peace and prosperity to Mexico herself, and certainly none to this country. It seems to be inspired in part by the administration's domestic labor policy and its general hostility to business. That is not excuse enough for this unwise excess of timidity.

Hollywood Speaks---

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Maude Adams, in life as legendary a figure of the theater as Bernhardt and Duse in death, will be making her first screen appearance this year, but behind it will lie years of interest in films as a dramatic medium.

The slim girl who is still "Peter Pan" in the eyes of an older generation is now a matronly woman of 65. She is alert and interested in the "new" and ready to undertake a personal role in the art that was yet unknown when she was born.

For years Hollywoood has offered her screen opportunities, but Producer David O. Selznick was the first to get her signature on a contract. Considering that Miss Adams was the elusive Garbo of her era—a brilliant star before the footlights but a shadowy figure off stage—all Hollywood looks upon her capitulation to films as a triumph.

* * *

Whether her work in Hollywood will affect her status as the theater's No. 1 recluse was not determined by her recent screen-testing visit. Workers reported her not the least shy, either before screen or still cameras, and said she was enthusiastic over her "new adventure." But of the many requested interviews, none materialized. The actress, of course, was very busy with her tests, and left shortly for the east.

It was as a technician, a side of her activities little known to the thousands who claimed her as the heroine of Barrie's best known plays, that she first became interested in films. Retiring completely from the stage in 1917, two years after her producer, Charles Frohman, died in the sinking of the Lusitania. Miss Adams was out of the public eye until 1931, when she appeared briefly in Cleveland in "The Merchant of Venice."

However, early in her retirement, at the suggestion of a friend, she had asked the manager of a theater to show her his film projector and explain its workings. Her interest turned to the possibilities of color films. When she learned that there was no artificial light of sufficient power to take colored pictures at the speed necessary for movies, she took up the study of lighting.

* * *

At the time she was convalescing from the illness that had led to retirement, and was desperately in need of some new interest not too distant from her own dramatic field. The next two years she spent in Schenectady's electrical laboratories, where facilities for experiment were arranged for her. With Dr. Perley Gordon Nutting, she worked on problems of incandescent lighting, and Dr. Willis Rodney Whitney, of the Research Laboratory, gave aid. Finally a new and powerful lamp, fore-runner of the "inkies" used on sound stages today, was developed.

Miss Adams' next film task was in collaboration with Robert J. Flaherty, the director who made "Nanook of the North." They made a short film, dealing with pottery, that is now in the Metropolitan museum as an example of perfect film lighting.

The actress, whose home is on Long Island, gradually has lessened her retirement, although she never returned to Broadway. Work in little theaters, on the air and as director of drama at Stephens college in Missouri brought her occasionally into the headlines.

But as she prepares for Hollywood the spotlight falls on her own declaration, written ten years ago:

"Life is still full of adventure. There is something exciting in challenging the years to come."

And in Challenging Hollywood too, she might add now.

You may confuse Bing Crosby's singing or Rudy Vallee's with that of other crooners, but you can't mistake that of Johnny "Scat" Davis.

INDIANS' FAILURE TO HELP PELICANS MAY RESULT IN LOSS OF STAR.

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK —(AP)— The Giants and Yanks aren't accepting reservations for a subway world series, but Colgate football officials have shifted the Colgate-Duke game scheduled Oct. 8 from the Yankee stadium to Buffalo just in case . . . because Larry Gilbert, manager of the last-place New Orleans Pelicans in the Southern association, didn't get expected help from the Cleveland Indians, he may sell his star twirler, Russell (Red) Evans, to the Giants, who already have sent four players to New Orleans.

Speaker

If this isn't some sort of record you can sue yours truly . . . in a game between Detroit and Philadelphia the other day, no less than five former Duke university stars were in the Athletics lineup . . . They were Bill Werber, at third; Ace Parker, at second; Wayne Ambler, at short; Chubby Dean, pinch-hitter de luxe, and Pitcher Dave Smith.

Here's the way the Southwest conference football race shapes up in the summer books: Rice will be as strong as last year . . . Texas Christian again will have the best line in the league and is counted the No. 1 team to upset Rice . . . Texas A. and M. has a flock of nifty Freshmen coming up . . . Southern Methodist figures to be tough, with one of its best frosh teams in history ready to go . . . Texas U. will have a stouter line and better-balanced backfield . . . Baylor lost too many stars by graduation . . . Arkansas can't be counted out, but how they're going to miss those tall ends!

* * *

The Dodgers haven't beat the Giants all season . . . Ernie Quigley, umpire-in-chief for the National league, will be the professor when City college (New York) launches a course in football, baseball and basketball officiating today.

* * *

A FLOCK of southern baseball managers are talking themselves hoarse trying to get 17-year-old Willard Marshall, crack outfielder of a Richmond (Va.) semi-pro nine, to say yes . . . Tris Speaker, who surely ought to know, says Vince DiMaggio of the Boston Bees is his idea of a center-fielder.

Prospect Enters Win Row By Defeating Johns Park

Hangs Up 7 to 5 Victory to Hand Johnnies First Defeat In City Class A Softball League.

PROSPECT PARK didn't fool when it won its first City Class A softball league game.

The Prospectors didn't pick on any second rate team to trim. They halted their four-game losing streak yesterday at their home park by handing Johns Park its first setback of the season by a 7 to 5 score.

Manager John Valentine's men never trailed as they turned back the league leaders.

Ted Frisbee, the pitching victim of the other defeats, was on the mound for Prospect, and although he gave up 10 hits, he turned in a masterful mound performance, despite seven passes.

Four players collected all of the 10 hits he yielded, with Walter Ross and Bowen dividing six of them. The former hit a home run.

Prospect collected an even dozen hits off the delivery of Fritz Carver. Longshore and Duke Weber got three apiece.

The Johnnies started their own undoing in the very first inning when they committed four errors, which, with a hit, Prospect turned into four runs.

Prospect tallied two more in the fourth to break a 4-all tie with three singles and a walk. Frisbee's home run gave Prospect its last run in the fifth.

Two walks and a single gave Johns Park one run in the first, a walk, W. Ross' single and Bowen's double enabled the losers to tally twice in the second and singles by Hunt and W. Ross, mixed with Kenny Ross' sacrifice, gave the Johnnies another run in the third. W. Ross hit his home run in the eighth with the bases loaded.

Boots Chance to Share Lead.

SOFTBALL representatives of the Richland county fish and game association of North Park blew a golden opportunity of grabbing a share of first place in the hectic City A league race yesterday by dropping a 12 to 10 verdict to Liberty park at Liberty park.

If North Park had won it would share the lead with the Johns Park club which dropped its first game of the season to Prospect yesterday.

The Sportsmen pounded Joe Bush for 13 hits, but after the first three frames were not able to do much with his slants.

Liberty Park, which had only scored one triumph in the league so far, came in with a five-run rally in the seventh to overcome North's 10 to 7, advantage and hand the runner-up outfit its second defeat.

North tallied three in the first, and after Manager Nick Wagner's aggregation tied in with three in the second, went ahead with a four-run splurge in the third stanza to take a 7 to 3 lead. The losers added three more markers, but Liberty was not to be denied.

The Liberty outfit registered their five runs in the seventh on three walks, singles by Bosko and Vogel and Wentz' double. Liberty kept Bush in hot water most of the way by committing six miscues, all of them figuring in North's scoring.

Ed Henrich paced the Northerners of the plate with four singles, while Musille, Wentz, Vogel and Bosko contributed two hits each for the winners.

SHAWNEE-ON - DELAWARE, Pa.—(U.P.)—Horton Smith of Chicago was favored today to win the P. G. Sees Another Subway Series

Jack Doyle Puts Price on Yanks, Giants.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Jack Doyle, Broadway betting commissioner, still thinks there will be a third straight "subway series" between the New York Yankees and the Giants, according to mid-season odds he announced today.

Although the Yanks are tied with Cleveland for the American league lead now, Doyle put the price on the New Yorkers at 7-10, with the Indians a notch below at 2-1. He quoted the Giants at even money, with Pittsburgh the next shortest price in the National league at 5-2.

Doyle said the closeness of the pennant races would make it necessary to change his prices at frequent intervals. Here are his latest odds:

Pay Your Money, Take Your Choice

That's How Major League Races Stack Up Today; Yanks, Pirates Play Best Ball.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR., Associated Press Sports Writer.

THIS three-day suspension of regular major-league activities for the all-star game affords a good chance to check up on the state of the pennant races.

Right now it looks like a case of pay your money and take your choice with three or four teams in each league within striking distance of the top and the New York Yankees and Pittsburgh Pirates playing the best ball in their respective circuits.

Boston Clubs Close.

The New York Giants, still leading the National league by 3½ games, and the Cleveland Indians, tied with the Yanks for first in the American, still are reaping the benefits of early-season spurts. Chicago and Cincinnati and possibly Boston in the National league are close enough to be dangerous while the Boston Red Sox in the American may start going places any day.

Although the Cubs managed to take first place at one time, the current Pittsburgh threat is the most serious the Giants have had to face. Since June 7th the Bucs have won 18 games and lost five—and just at the time when they're supposed to take their annual nose dive.

The Reds, after climbing to second, have lost six straight to Pittsburgh and Chicago, emphasizing the fact that the Giants' best chance lies in having their rivals knock one another off.

The Yankees' current war cry is "We've just begun to fight." They won nine straight before the Senators checked them with a tie Monday.

Counting out their early rush, the Indians have been playing close to the .600 mark, enough to keep them in the fight anyway. Their greatest trouble, rounding out a complete set of starting pitchers who can last the route, hasn't been settled yet. Johnny Allen and Bob Feller have done practically all the work lately.

Threatens Leaders.

The Red Sox, after a brief fling at the lead, settled back to a steady third-place gait until last week. They've started coming again with six victories in their last seven starts and the spurt has left them only 2½ games out of the lead.

Yankee Stadium Selected As Site for 1939 Game.

CINCINNATI — (U.P.) — The site of the 1939 major league all-star game will be Yankee stadium, New York, it was decided at a joint meeting of the National and American leagues here late yesterday.

Atlanta Star Title Threat

HAVERFORD, Pa.—(AP)—A 20-year-old youth from Atlanta, Ga., representing Georgia Tech, today was given an outside chance to win the national intercollegiate tennis title.

The youth, Russell Bobbitt, yesterday won over the favored Isadore Bellis of the University of Pennsylvania, 6-4, 6-3, for his second surprise win. His first came against the second seeded Don McNeill of Kenyon college.

McNeill and Morey Lewis, also of Kenyon, yesterday handed a 6-3, 10-8 doubles defeat to Bobbitt and W. E. Moore of Gergia Tech.

INDIANS ADD TO LEAD AS A. A. RIVALS REST

INDIANAPOLIS—(AP)—The Indianapolis Indians, who jumped into the American association lead in time to be declared the team to face the league's all stars July 14, aren't wasting any time increasing their skimpy first place margin.

While six other clubs were enjoying an open date yesterday, the Indians took on second place St. Paul and pounded out a 10 to 4 triumph. The victory boosted their advantage to a game and a half over the Apostles.

BRASSIE swingers of the pace setting DeLuxe Cab club broke loose with a smashing attack yesterday at Possum Run to down the Big Three Beers, 4 to 1, and increase their lead in the News-Journal Class A golf league to four points.

Although the Cabbies performance was a feature of the weekly matches, it failed to over shadow the brilliant shooting of Pete Zeides, Goldsmith Clothiers' No. 1 member.

Zeides 2 Under Par.

Zeides, who is enjoying one of his best years in league competition, came through with one of the best scores of the year as he cracked out a two-under-par 34 on the inside nine to lead the Goldsmith outfit to a 3 to 2 victory over the Matthes Clothiers. Zeides' card, which included an eagle on the par five, No. 3 hole, won individual medal honors for the day.

In yesterday's other match, the Richland Printers retained their runner-up position by blanking the Yuncker Sports, 3 to 0, with a match postponed.

Two other players gave Zeides a battle for the individual honors. They were Bob Dillon and Oscar Frantz. Both shotmakers tore up the inside nine with 35, one below par figures.

Win 3 Matches.

The Cabbies, paced by Dillon, who played the No. 4 position, copped three matches and team total to smother the fifth-place Beers. Chuck Snyder, who tallied a 41, lost the only match to Adam Brandt who also finished with a 41.

Zeides' par-shattering round was good for one of the three matches the Goldsmith team won. Bud Stirtzinger gave the Matthes foursome one point by defeating Mahalic, and the losers gained their second point on a flip of a coin for team total. Both teams finished with 154 points.

With Frantz leading the way the Printers had little trouble in taking the three matches from the Sportsmen.

LEADS BRITISH FIELD

SANDWICH, Eng.—(NS)—A 25-year-old Scotsman, Johnny Fallon, led the field today with 69-73—142 in the qualifying rounds as play proper got under way for the British open golf championship. He led Henry Cotton, defending champion, by one stroke.

Capt. Eyston Flys Toward Bonneville Flats For Another Assault On Land Speed Record

By HENRY McLEMORE

NEW YORK —(AP)— He looks and acts as little like a speed demon as any person could imagine. His wavy hair is brush d with gray, and his pale blue eyes look out from behind horn-rimmed glasses. He is shy and his favorite topic of conversation is the raising of chickens.

His name is Captain George E. T. Eyston and today he was flying toward Salt Lake City and the dreary salt flats of Bonneville for another assault on his own world's land speed record of 311.42 M.P.H.

The last time I saw the Captain prior to yesterday was at dawn of a day last November. He had just finished a run for the record in his Silver Thunderbolt 3000-horsepower monster that whines, not roars, as it rockets its driver faster than any other man has ever traveled on earth.

Those runs on the salt flats provide the most exciting sights in sports. I'll never forget the one I saw.

Me and my companions, dodgers of mud-holes at the start of the measured mile. The only light we had was that provided by the dim cold fingers of the stars, trooper automobile headlamps. Far down the flat beds, six miles away, the lights of campfires glowed. Campfires of Captain Eyston's base, where Thunderbolt was being tuned for its death-defying run.

CAPT. EYSTON

The sky was blue, purple. It was an unreal light.

Then word came that Eyston had started. This word wasn't needed, because riding with the wind came a whine, an ugly, menacing whine. Thunderbolt's motor was singing its song of speed. And riding it, waving his baton of the chorus of mighty cylinders, was Eyston, the quiet, bespectacled man whose hobby is raising chickens.

We peered through the pale light, for the last sight of him. But Thunderbolt is silver, and the morning was silver, and it was not until the car was almost in front of us did we see it.

A high, piercing "whee-e-e-e-e" Sheets of colored flame, a trumble of the earth that was all.

Now the Captain's on his way again, for another dice with death on the salt. This time he hopes to make the "mile three," as he terms the measured mile of 333 miles per hour.

Thunderbolt has been improved in size and power. The biggest change in the cars involved the [illegible] of the driver's seat. Last November he drove exposed and the wind whipped off his goggles, forcing him to make one run driving with one hand. Even the Captain doesn't think that's exciting.

Good luck, Captain! And don't pass any red lights.

His Horse Is Also Winner

What Do You Mean— GOOD OLD DAYS?

Your grandmother probably lived in a house like this. Perhaps you had many a good time there as a child. But would you want to go back to grandmother's house—to live there now?

The "good old days" were not good; nor were they easy. They were crude, inconvenient and uncomfortable.

Good Old Days? The town's richest family lacked the safeguards and conveniences we all now take for granted: electric fans, adequate refrigeration, reliable drug products that the doctor can prescribe with safety, cheap telephone service, nationally known dependable packaged foods, automatic central heating, chic popular-priced apparel, and that glory of American art, the modern bathroom!

Many things have made these blessings possible—inventive genius, plentiful capital and that insatiable desire for "something better" so peculiar to Americans. But only one thing has made them available to everybody, north and south, city and country, banker and workingman alike: Low cost manufacture and distribution created by newspaper advertising.

Business should have faith in the country's future, and should advertise extensively in newspapers now to build tomorrow's sales "said Kenneth Collins, last week.

"No one could make a worse psychological blunder than to assume that there is a recession of people's wants." People want things. Every day they are selecting clothes, furniture, radios, refrigerators—reading the ads—checking values. Every day the pages of The News-Journal are scanned for buying opportunities.

Live merchants put their best offerings into The News-Journal advertising and smart buyers, aware of this, read the ads before they buy.

With newspaper reading of advertising definitely established merchants need not expect buyers to ask for the goods they don't advertise

MARKET PRICES OFF FOLLOWING BRIEF UPTREND

Rails, Steels and Utilities Moderately Lower; Steel Operations to Rise.

BULLETIN

NEW YORK —(AP)— A new surge of buying appeared after midday in pivotal industrials and rails today as the stock market suddenly resumed its climb. Trading leaders pushed from 50 cents to around $2 a share higher. Early losses running to $2 were cancelled and replaced with gains.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—With one of the fastest sprints in its history reeled off the last two weeks, the stock market puffed almost to a standstill today. Prices rallied after a further setback around the opening but traders sold on the bulges.

Near the fourth hour, losses of fractions to more than a point predominated.

Reaction held sway in most other markets also. On the curb, moderately lower prices were in the majority. Excitement ebbed in the leading raw material markets, stirred last week into activity by the broadest forward buying in nearly two years. Commodity prices were mixed.

Rail and other corporate bonds yielded part of the recent gains in keeping with the trend in stocks.

Moderately lower most of the time were U. S. Steel, Anaconda Copper, American Telephone, General Electric, New York Central, International Harvester, Pennsylvania and Western Union.

General Motors was prominent on the comeback and Bethlehem and Woolworth forged ahead on the rally to net advances.

Helping the rally was announcement of a boost of $3 a ton in the price of lead.

Stock exchange monthly figures revealed the June appreciation in listed share values, topping $7,000,000,000, was the largest for any month since August 1929, at the peak of the post-war bull market.

Optimism for acceleration of the recent slow uptrend in business was supported by expectations of a quick recovery from the drop in steel production this week, due mostly to fourth of July shutdowns. Mills were expected to step up production next week.

Women Murders Do Unusual Penance on Crime Anniversary.

DWIGHT, Ill —(INS)— To mark the anniversary of their shocking crime, Mrs Blanche Dunkel and Mrs. Evelyn Smith were placed in solitary confinement today for the third consecutive year.

The unusual bit of penance was added to their long prison sentences after the women were convicted of the murder and dismemberment of Mrs. Dunkel's son-in-law, Ervin L. Lang in Chicago in 1935 The terms of 180 years each would not allow the women to be paroled with time off for good behavior before they are 100 years old

TOBACCO CHEWERS JUST SNAP FINGERS AT TAX COLLECTORS

JACKSON Miss —(UP)— This is one place where a man can chew his tobacco, dip his snuff drink his hard liquor any style he pleases—and not be beholden to the state tax collector

When it comes to cigarets that's different Gov Paul B Johnson without political qualms suggested to the legislature that it increase the state tax on cigarets from 3 to 4 cents a pack

One to-see-chewing senators three or four tobacco-chewing representatives and the remainder of the cigaret and pipe-smoking legislature enacted the measure

But what they smoke in the lawmaking chambers pertains beside the point when it comes to cross-roads politics Without losing votes, the candidate may put his coat at home along with his cigars and cigarets lets out his necktie and borrows a chew here and there as a friendly gesture

Of all the taxes suggested to make up for revenues that will be lost when a homestead exemption act is scheduled to pass levies on chewing tobacco snuff and liquor have not been mentioned.

These three "untouchables are as steeped in political tradition as the practice of kissing voters' children at speech-makings

Why they haven't been taxed is a mystery of Mississippi politics but not to some of the legislators

They generally believe in this political axiom of 20 years ago what happens may not apply now

To tax chewing tobacco or snuff is political suicide and timing, it appeared that the president intended to let speculation work each local situation up to a fever heat and then step into the stage without any advance notice of the part he intends to play.

He said he reserves the right to oppose certain candidates within his party whose philosophies come into too direct conflict with the New Deal's.

There was reason to believe Mr. Roosevelt would revive his fight for government reorganization on his way across country. He told reporters that the country undoubtedly wanted it and that he proposed it be put into effect at the earliest possible moment.

The federal government, he said, should be put on a business basis, not four years from now, but now.

TEST ARRANGED FOR HUGE GUN

113-Ton Weapon Would Hurl Shell 20 Miles Off Coast at Cost of $800 Per Shot.

(By United Press)

WATERTOWN, Mass —A 113-ton streamlined defense gun, mounted on a special steel flatcar for easy transportation over the nation's railroad network, soon will be moved to Aberdeen proving grounds near Washington for government tests.

First to be built under a national rearmament program, the 30-foot weapon can hurl a 260-pound projectile and pierce a battleship 20 miles off the coast.

Uncle Sam's newest weapon places the guns of World war days in the horse and buggy era Where they fired one shot a minute, the new gun will fire from two to three Where two to three men were required to swing the old type guns into firing position, one man, literally with a flick of his finger, can manipulate the new one.

Engineers at Watertown arsenal where the mounted monster is housed said improved breech mechanism has speeded the firing and use of anti-friction bearings has made it easier to raise, lower or swing the gun about. They add that the gun is believed the heaviest practical mobile type.

The guns in wartime would be moved in batteries of two over any standard size railroad track and could be set up, ready for use, in five minutes Steel braces, thrust into the earth along a railroad embankment, keep the flatcar from derailment when the gun is fired.

Cost of ammunition would range from $500 to $800 per shot.

It's Odd
But It's Science.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Hydrogen may explain most of the heat and brightness of the sun and stars.

The role of hydrogen, lightest weight of all the chemical elements, is calculated in the Physical Review by G Gamow, of George Washington university.

The source of the sun's heat has long been a mystery. Until a few years ago it was thought that the sun and all stars must be burning up. Radiating their mass into space was the scientific description. But it was found that on this theory sun and stars apparently would have been "dead" eons ago.

Dr. Gamow calculates what can happen in the central part of a star, where the temperature runs to millions of degrees.

At the temperatures assigned to the interiors of stars he says hydrogen will be converted into heavier chemical elements. This, furthermore, is the only change of the sort that can take place. The other chemical elements will not be changed

Conversion of hydrogen into heavier elements will liberate vast quantities of heat and light. So Dr. Gamow figures this conversion of hydrogen answers the old mystery.

BUCYRUS VOTES TO DECIDE ON TWO PROJECTS

Issues Submitted for Muny Swimming Pool, Extension of Street Program.

BUCYRUS—Bucyrus voters will have the opportunity to express their approval or disapproval to two major bond issues at the August primaries, by reason of action taken by the Bucyrus city council Tuesday night during regular session.

Bond issues outside the 10 mill limitation will be offered to the voters in the amount of $40,000 for an extensive street resurfacing program and in the amount of $25,000 for a municipal swimming pool. Both projects, if approved by the voters, will be submitted as federal projects for government PWA work.

In presenting the issues to council, Mayor George T. Dustman, who met with a special committee last week to discuss ways and means of financing the projects, stated that the committee had decided it advisable to drop the tentative plan for also submitting a bond issue for a new city administration building.

The swimming pool issue has been the direct result of weeks of effort by a special city park committee.

The question of location for the swimming pool will be decided after and if the bond issue is approved. No action has been taken by council in approving the site at Harmon playground, recommended by the park committee.

CITY TO BORROW $8,000 UNDER NEW RELIEF ACT

Council Acts to Obtain Loan Against Anticipated Sales Tax Funds.

Faced with unpaid relief bills totaling nearly $30,000, city council last night acted to take advantage of the new state relief act, which permits the city to borrew against anticipated sales tax receipts.

Council acted unanimously on a resolution authorizing City Auditor Paul L. Kelley to make formal application to borrow $8,000. The amount is the maximum available to Mansfield in the $1,500,000 allocated by the state. The funds had been formerly allocated to the counties to retire relief bonds. At the present distribution of relief in Mansfield it is expected that the money will only meet relief costs for 21 days.

Only Plan City Can Accept.

Of the numerous relief programs set up by the state, the borrowing against future sales tax receipts so far has been the only plan that the city has been able to participate in, officials said. Other plans to provide relief funds all call for matching of funds while the city has none available.

Officials pointed out that if they had been granted permission to transfer $50,000 from the sinking fund they would have been able to participate in the matching programs for available relief funds.

The only funds the city receives now for relief purposes is approximately $5,000 allocated by the state monthly for administrative purposes, which food bills have been costing on an average of $12,000 monthly.

COURT 'HITS' FOR $200 AND 'WRITERS' PAY

Three accused Mansfield "number writers" arraigned in municipal court today on charges of selling tickets in a scheme of chance "paid off" when the court "hit" for $200. The cases of two others, one charged with promoting the game and the other with selling tickets, was continued until Monday.

Three of the group, Charles Powell, 40, colored, and Ferne Buell, 56, both of 49 Elm street, and Wesley Bradley, 42, colored, of 112 Touby street, pleaded guilty. Powell was fined $300 and costs while the other two men received fines of $50 and costs each.

Warns of Maximum.

Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch suspended $200 of Powell's fine on condition of good behavior. He warned the group that a maximum fine of $500 and costs and six months in jail would result for any future activity in the "racket" in Mansfield.

Nick Poulos, 50, of 144 North Diamond street, charged with promoting a scheme of chance, and John Dadlis, 41, of 170 North Mulberry street, pleaded innocent and asked for continuance. The hearing was set for July 11.

Poulos was released on a $500 cash bond posted yesterday and Dadlis posted a bond of $100.

Police arrested the men on North Main street Saturday. They said they found several partly used policy books in possession of the group while at the Elm street address they confiscated a carton of new books.

Approval was also given the resolution authorizing Mayor D. B. Young to employ two engineers to prepare preliminary plans for Shelby's two PWA projects, calling for $300,000 for additions to the municipal water and electric plants. Tentative approval was given by PWA officials in Columbus early this month.

Does Your Breath Broadcast—"I WEAR FALSE TEETH"?

Play Safe—Be Sure—Use Polident

Most people who wear plates or bridges suffer from a special kind of bad breath. Dentists call it—"denture breath."

You won't know if you have it—but it can spoil your happiness. Friends will shudder—people avoid you! And the worst of it is that ordinary brushing cannot prevent it. Neither will mouth washes. For the odor comes from a mucin-scum that collects on plates and bridges. This scum soaks up germs and decay bacteria and causes a vile odor that you cannot detect.

One thing can stop "denture breath"—and that's Polident! This new brushless cleaner has won the approval of thousands of dentists. Users say it's a blessing.

Polident not only purifies false teeth—but also removes all stain, tarnish and deposits. Makes breath sweeter—plates look better and feel better. Costs only 30¢ at any drug store and lasts for many weeks. Money back if not delighted.

Cleans, Purifies Like Magic
Put plate or bridge in ½ glass of water. Add a little Polident powder. Leave in 10 to 15 minutes—rinse—and it's sweet and purified—ready to use!

A MOTHER WILL FIGHT

WHILE looking for berries, along a quiet stream I had a rare experience. Some bird along an eastern edge looked interesting, but hardly had I touched them when a distressed clucking startled me. There among the dry leaves and the uneven shadows of the bank I saw no living thing, and yet I felt a strange foreboding of some evil I was about to do.

Scarcely had this feeling filled my mind, when like a sudden whirlwind, from nowhere, an angry mother quail slid along the edge, with wings outspread and dragging heavily on the ground, her tail broad and sweeping the dried leaves and twigs along her path like a stiff broom.

I backed away along the stream, and she followed, so close I could have touched her [illegible] In her agitation, her ruffled feathers made her appear the size of an ordinary hen. Suddenly she, who moments before was [illegible], did the same. She [illegible] hypnotized, perhaps. At any rate, she [illegible] more than twenty feet, and she stopped, [illegible] off among a thick growth of weeds, and returned by another way to the place from which we started.

I had and watched. I saw her stand erect and curiously look about. Then she made a tender chuck and all the [illegible] appeared to stir with life. For under those wings fifteen baby quails, no larger than [illegible] [illegible] to [illegible] days old. I saw the down on some had not fully dried, a little patch of shell clung to another.

My hat is off to that little mother!

COUNCIL OKAYS $15,000 STREET PAVING PROJECT

McPherson Street Improvement Authorized; Numerous Petitions Heard.

Final legislation authorizing the improvement of McPherson street from Lawnsdale street to Howard street was approved by city council at its meeting last night.

The improvement calls for the grading and paving of the roadway and the construction of curbs and gutters at a cost of approximately $15,000. Of this amount, the property owners' share is figured at $5,700 and the city's share, which will be paid from the auto registration fee fund, at $9,500.

Council also approved legislation authorizing property owners living on the short end of East Townview circle to improve that section of the street at their own expense. The city's share of $161 will be paid from the auto registration fee fund.

A change in street grade on Forest street from Bartley avenue to Marion avenue also was authorized.

Miscellaneous business contracted at last night's session included the referring of numerous petitions to various council committees.

Ask Whiteway Extension.

These included a petition from property owners on Park avenue west asking for the extension of the whiteway lighting system which was referred to the light committee.

A petition submited by property owners on Winwood drive seeking the construction of a water line to serve their properties was turned over to the water committee.

Two petitions asking the construction of sanitary sewers on Overlook avenue, Lawnview avenue, Coleman road, Barnard avenue, Oliver avenue, Sloan avenue and Cline avenue were referred to sewer committee

Three petitions were referred to the street committee. They were from property owners on Park avenue west from Mulberry street to Bowman street asking for the widening of the street, from Mrs. Ella Danm, 181 West Fifth street seeking repair of retaining wall constructed on her property by the city, and a petition from property owners on East Townview extension seeking improvement of the street.

A report from Mayor Claude M. Hunter showed that the city had collected $123 30 in license fees during June. The total amount included eight dance licenses totaling $112 50 and two peddlers' permits totaling $10.80.

'HOPPERS NEW TO HIM

REGINA, Sask.—(UP)— Although millions of grasshoppers have crawled over Saskatchewan fields in recent years, one Ontario business man apparently thought the insects were new to the province. In a letter to Regina business firm, he offered packages of the dried insects, put up in fancy packets, as bait for Saskatchewan fishermen.

New Vaccine Halts Spread of Fever From Wood Ticks

CHEYENNE, Wyo.—(AP)—A new vaccine to prevent Rocky Mountain spotted fever from developing in persons bitten by wood ticks "undoubtedly is a major factor" in a reduction this year in the number of cases of fever in Wyoming, Dr G. M Anderson, state health officer, reports.

So far this year only 20 Wyoming cases have been noticed, compared with 83 in 1935, 47 in 1936 and 61 in 1937. The worst of the tick fever season usually is over by July although last year cases were reported as late as August

The vaccine was developed by the United States public health service's laboratory at Hamilton, Mont., and is used widely in the west where the fever is prevalent

Mansfield Likes 'Sane Fourth.'

LOOKING back to Mansfield's second successful community celebration of a "sane Fourth," the advantages of such an observance of the national holiday become increasingly apparent.

The program at the Fairground Monday afternoon and evening, sponsored by the Mansfield Public Parks association, gave further evidence of what can be accomplished in this city under leadership of an active group that is given willing co-operation by other organizations, and individuals talented along some particular line.

When it is considered that almost half the population of Mansfield gathered at the Fairground for the evening of varied entertainment, concluding with a magnificent fireworks display, and that additional thousands saw some parts of the pyrotechnic finale from various parts of the city, the popular appeal of such a program can scarcely be overestimated. Nor can those who participated in making it a success be too highly praised for the interest, enthusiasm and civic spirit that went into the vast amount of work involved in planning and carrying through such an elaborate program of entertainment and inspiration to patriotism.

As in other community activities, it is essential that there be capable and intelligent leadership in these Fourth of July celebrations, which, it is now anticipated, will continue as an annual event in Mansfield. The Public Parks association is the logical sponsoring agency for such an occasion and has already demonstrated its ability to carry through in an exceptional way.

Given the continued encouragement, and financial support, it deserves, and with the public co-operation already evidenced, there is every reason to believe that each successive Fourth of July celebration in Mansfield will gain in interest and attractiveness.

No Constitutional Favorites.

THE CIVIL LIBERTIES UNION, in some quarters, is considered a radical organization. Lately, however, it has been acting in a way to dispel such ideas. It has been battling for freedom from censorship and freedom of speech so thoroughly that it has defended, or offered to defend, both radicals and conservatives.

In fighting radio censorship, it offered to defend Mrs. Elizabeth Dilling against the charge that she had slandered the Methodist bishop of Nebraska and Iowa in a recent broadcast. Mrs. Dilling is the author of "The Red Network," a book which created quite a stir because it classed as dangerous "reds" a great many prominent Americans and organizations not usually so considered.

On the other side, the Union protested to Senator Minton against some of the methods of his committee in its investigation of lobby activities. It warned the National Labor Relations Board that it would defend employers' right to free speech as promptly and wholeheartedly as that of employes.

By such impartial action the Civil Liberties Union risks the wrath of a number of people and organizations believing in free speech only for the "right" speakers and "right" opinions. By its action it serves also to remind that the Declaration of Independence and the American Constitution make no distinction between freedom for liberals and freedom for conservatives.

Would Ban Fireworks Sale In Ohio.

SPREAD of sentiment against sale and use of fireworks has been so rapid during the past few years that it now seems quite likely that the matter of banning fireworks from the entire state (except for supervised public displays) can shortly be accomplished by action of the legislature.

Heretofore the interests representing the manufacture and sale of fireworks have been sufficiently strong to prevent legislative action, nor until this time has there been any aggressive state-wide movement to outlaw fireworks and other dangerous explosives as a part of Fourth of July observance.

Mansfield has joined many other Ohio cities in banning the sale or use of fireworks inside the city, but the effectiveness of city ordinances is weakened by the lack of a state law that would also stop sale at the many temporary roadside stands that spring up each year just outside city limits.

If the campaign launched in Cleveland this week to attempt to secure enactment by the legislature of a law to prohibit sale of fireworks in Ohio, except for public displays, can arouse interest and gain support among safety-minded people in all parts of the state, favorable action in the legislature can be brought about in time for application to next year's Fourth of July observance.

Richland county's representative, Ralph C. Lutz, has already expressed himself as favoring such a measure.

Boys, Butlers and Stamps.

YOUTHFUL stamp collectors in Washington, D. C. believed that they could get lots of foreign stamps if they inquired at the various embassies. They tried it in such numbers and so regularly that they became a nuisance to the people who had to answer the doorbells.

Butlers, however, possess hearts and human understanding. Instead of ordering the boys to stay away, the butlers evolved a scheme to serve the boys and spare themselves extra work at the front door. They set a definite time for calling—Saturday mornings—and agreed to set boxes containing the week's assortment of stamps in the front vestibules. The boys now rummage through the boxes without disturbing the occupants of the embassy, pick out any stamps they want, and go peacefully away.

Here is an example of co-operation and compromise in a matter which might have ended less happily for all concerned. It is trivial, perhaps, but instructive.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

AS ANYONE who reads the business pages knows, there is deep concern in the steel industry over the break-up of the price structure. Columns are devoted to theories as to what will occur now that "Pittsburgh Plus" has disappeared. Prices hereafter will be based at production plants, not on the price at Pittsburgh plus the freight rate to that plant.

The entire artificial control of prices has crumbled.

And the United States Steel Corporation was the first to give in, to reduce prices and to abolish "Pittsburgh Plus." U. S. Steel—the giant of them all! The Independents cannot forgive that.

Nor can the Independents cease to wonder whether the move was not specially designed by U. S. Steel to crush the rising independent competition. U. S. Steel has spent tens of millions developing new plants at strategic places, so that it will be affected least of all by the dropping of "Pittsburgh Plus."

Another theory has it that U. S. Steel, which has been in close contact with the Roosevelt administration, was setting its house in order prior to the oncoming monopoly investigations, by congress and the administrative departments.

If so, the government found itself in a peculiar position, for the Independents rushed to Washington to see whether the government could not shield them from what they termed "unfair" price competition of U. S. Steel.

* * *

NATURAL COURSE?

As a matter of fact, the crumbling of steel prices and the final wiping out of "Pittsburgh Plus" has been foreordained for some time. Potential customers knew; they would not buy. Economists knew.

Steel is no different from any other commodity. There is a world breakdown in commodity prices. When they have receded sufficiently from their inflated values, business will go ahead on its own momentum.

It is doubtful that any governmental moves could estop this natural and essential readjustment. Government spending may increase the velocity of business for a while, but it is not likely to deter prices from falling. The steel price structure crumbled in the face of huge government expenditures.

A period of readjustment is one of stress—and sometimes not everybody pulls through. U. S. Steel will, and others with well-diversified plants will. Perhaps in a year from now their plants will be humming. The auto industry will have an opportunity now to reduce its own prices and increase its business. And that would mean business for steel.

* * *

WATERWAYS, WAGES

Steel plants not on waterways will have a difficult time competing with plants on waterways since "Pittsburgh Plus" has been abolished. As in the first days of the nation, plants on waterways still have the advantage. Shipping by water costs much less than by rail.

Plants along the Great Lakes will benefit most. The great steel center of the country in the future will be Gary, Ind.—25 miles east of Chicago, on Lake Michigan. Gary today is second only to Pittsburgh. Detroit will continue to develop. A half-century ago it was no steel center at all. Cleveland has an advantage.

Youngstown, with no navigable waterway, will insist more than ever on a canal to the Ohio river.

Pittsburgh is saved by the Ohio river, as is Wheeling.

Birmingham is favorably situated in the south, as is Milwaukee in the north. Buffalo, at the eastern end of Lake Erie, may be too far east to compete for the lucrative auto business.

As to wages—that is a sore subject, even among employers. If so much new labor-saving machinery had not been installed in recent years, wages already would be down, of necessity. As it is, that machinery will take the place of many men, permitting the plants to operate in the black at less than 30 per cent of capacity.

But will the machine actually deprive men of jobs, in the long run? No, say the experts. New markets will be created, and more men than ever will be needed in the end.

Steel products probably will be obtainable at very much lower prices in the future—which will be a great boon to the world.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"Picayune."

The definition is almost literally correct. "Picayune" was formerly the name given in Louisiana, Florida and other southern states to the Spanish half-real valued at about six and a quarter cents; subsequently it was applied to the coin we now call the "nickel," which was also known as a "fippenny bit" contracted to fif!

The progenitor of "picayune" is the French picaillon, an old copper coin of Piedmont, France, which was adopted in those parts of America that the French colonized.

LET US HAVE PEACE

More Lobbying Than Ever Before

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—A reader asks: "Why isn't a determined effort made to stop lobbying in congress?"

It has been going on ever since I can remember, and, off and on, it is 23 years that I have been in Washington. All that time, too, a succession of congressional anti-lobbying committees have been fighting it. Today, if anything, there is more of it than ever.

Before my generation I have no doubt that it dated back to congress' first session.

* * *

ALWAYS!

Twenty-three years!

Why, in the early 1890's (it was 1893, if I remember correctly), as a very cubbish reporter I "covered" a session of the South Dakota legislature, and there was a howl there and then concerning state legislative lobbying — not only at Pierre (S. D.) but at all the other state capitals.

Railroad lobbying was the main thing in that era; but there were plenty of other kinds of lobbyists also.

Anyway, I submit that, since state legislative lobbying was so rampant as far back as that, it is probable that national legislative lobbying was equally so at the same juncture—say 45 years ago.

A century ago likewise! I'd bet on it.

* * *

NO CASH NOW

Probably nineteenth century lobbying was somewhat more crass than at present.

I think that cash money formerly changed hands quite frequently; not now, I am satisfied.

There is, nevertheless, as much yowling about lobbying as ever.

No inroads appear to have been made against it.

* * *

WHAT IS LOBBYING?

Well, what IS lobbying?

A special interest is "pro" or "contra" some specific governmental policy, and wages an organized campaign accordingly.

The National Association of Manufacturers and the United States Board of Trade have their own respective notions (rather similar to one another) as to what will be best, in the long run, for the country. Labor has a couple of organizations (somewhat conflicting and conflicting likewise with big business) which have THEIR ideas.

* * *

ANTI SALOON LEAGUE

Washington never had a more formidable lobby than the Anti-Saloon league's.

I always was against it, but I always considered it entitled to express itself.

Maybe it misrepresented, but a certain amount of misrepresentation is constitutional. The Anti-Saloon league, however, never bought votes. It scared legislators, but I believe that was its privilege. All it did was to warn candidates that prohibitionists would cast their ballots against "antis" if it could identify them.

Which, was strictly according to Hoyle, it seems to me.

* * *

FORGED TELEGRAMS

An organization is not, of course, justified, in sending forged telegrams (as, it is charged, has been done—by certain power interests) —from supposed voters to congressmen.

But surely it is their right to urge legitimate sympathizers to telegraph.

* * *

IS IT THIS?

The whole issue is this:

If a campaign is on your side it is a patriotic movement.

If it is on the opposition side it is a venal body.

Health Advice

Camp Life Good for Everyone.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE SUMMER camp for the young—it's too bad there aren't some for the old—has become such a well established institution that it has as much of a place in the routine of American life as the school in winter.

As to the question whether it is "good" for the children, I don't think there can be any doubt about that. After all, we were not designed to live in houses. It was only after we got hairless and weak and lost all our natural protections that we sought shelter indoors. I agree that our superior mentality and ingenuity in designing protection and heat, and the other appurtenances of indoors, have added to the length of human life and that we have better health and more comfort, especially in the feet, than the naked savage in the woods. The legend of the health of the primitive brute is very easy to explode.

But a stretch of outdoor life in the summer is swell for anybody's health—mental, moral and physical. There is no country in the world so favored as North America for this sort of life. European countries are cold and rainy in the summer or overcrowded, so that it is next to impossible to find a camping site. We have limitless woods galore, lush with natural beauty.

Take Precautions.

In sending boys and girls to camp, I advise the same preliminary precautions as when they are going to school. Each one should be vaccinated against diphtheria, typhoid fever and smallpox. In camp, typhoid fever is the most important because, although camp directors are very careful about their water and milk supply, slips will occur, and individual prophylaxis is the safest way.

The beginner in camp will learn not only a great deal of woods lore, but also hygienic lore—first aid, emergency treatment, artificial respiration.

We just had an example of the proficiency of the Boy Scout's training when in my own city several persons were struck by lightning on a golf course. Boy Scouts were in the crowd and immediately began carrying out artificial respiration by the approved prone pressure method. One man's life was undoubtedly saved by their knowledge and promptness.

Probably the best all round exercise for all parts of the body is swimming, and all camps make a specialty of that. There is no better appetizer than open air, no better cure for insomnia than sleeping under the stars. Young people need neither appetizer nor hypnotic, fortunately, but for their elders who are troubled that way I recommend two weeks in the woods.

Camp directors should see, however, that the camp routine avoids undue fatigue. School is a strenuous period and the camp should be a builder-upper.

Timely Editorial

A Religious Revival.

Roger Babson, delivering an official address as moderator of the Congregational and Christian churches, prophesied a general revival of religion. He urged that the church adapt its program to the needs of the time that the new movement may have proper leadership.

A knowledge of history and of human nature makes Babson's prediction appear justified. It is human nature to be forgetful of religion while the needs of the physical life are easily satisfied and to return to religion when hard economic times come. Thus the tides of popular religious enthusiasm are the reverse of the booms and depressions of the business world.

The tendency of the church to be complaisant when its temporal support comes without much solicitation is its peril when the economic tide is changing. The Babson warning is timely.—Detroit News.

Should America Abolish 'Heart Balm' Suits and Alimony for Childless Wives?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

MRS. FRANK WALLER, of Wisconsin, answers with a "YES!" to "He done me wrong, Judge! I was just an innocent, trusting little child when I went to his apartment—so now, please, won't you make the scoundrel gimme fifty thousand smackers?"

SHOULD THE AMERICAN GOVERNMENT ABOLISH THIS PATHETIC PLEA . . . AND BRAND IT FOR THE RUTHLESS RACKET WHICH IT OFTEN IS? OR SHOULD WE CONTINUE TO LET OUR COURTS BE USED FOR LEGAL HOLD-UPS?

Mrs. Frank Waller — Young* American wife, of Prairie du Chien, Wis.—has no doubts about the matter. Thinks—and plainly says—that these Heart Balm Gals are H-U-S-S-I-E-S. And suggests that Decent Citizens should say it with FEDERAL LAWS.

Dear Miss Robinson—

I believe this nation should do away with Love Balm suits and Alimony for Childless Wives. Both institutions are a disgrace to any decent country.

Just what is a Love Balm Suit? Whether it be a breach of promise or an alienation of affection, it is simply legalized thuggery, a device by which one person can gold-dig another, with the help of our courts.

Do we wish our courts used for such purposes? Would any really innocent or sensitive girl try to have a PAYMENT MADE FOR HER VIRTUE?

The stupidest person knows that true love can neither be bought or sold. It may mean more than life itself to those concerned—YET IT HAS NO CASH VALUE. The heart which can be "balmed" by a cash settlement was for sale originally.

But there is something even worse than "heart balm." Of all the vicious and degrading practices to which our courts give their support, this business of "ALIENATION OF AFFECTIONS" is the worst. The truth is—IT IS IMPOSSIBLE FOR ANYONE TO 'STEAL' ANOTHER'S LOVE. Both parties must be of the same mind or there is no case to start with. And if both parties are willing, where does the "stealing" come in?

PERSONALLY I THINK THAT "HEART BALM" and "ALIENATION" SUITS ARE THE MOST INDECENT RACKETS WHICH A CIVILIZED NATION EVER SUPPORTED. THERE IS ONLY ONE THING WORSE THAN THE DEGRADED CREATURES WHO DEMAND CASH SETTLEMENTS FOR LOST LOVE, AND THAT IS THE COURTS WHO CONDUCT SUCH SUITS.

I am, as yet, one of those childless wives. I have been married nearly eleven years and am not thinking of divorce. Far from it. But if I ever did divorce my husband I'd never ask for one cent of alimony. Even if I wanted to, my pride wouldn't let me.

Then, too, if our marriage went on the rocks, I'd know, deep in my heart, that I must certainly have been at fault, too. After all, there are always two sides to every story—and why should the husband be made to pay for something which perhaps he never really did in the first place?

Mrs. Frank Waller, 29 years.

Prairie du Chien, Wis.

Brave, fine words, my dear—words which every self-respecting American woman should echo. But let me add that there is another vicious practice which you have failed to mention—namely, SEPARATE MAINTENANCE. Under Separate Maintenance, the wife may leave her husband and be legally protected from his visits, YET OBTAIN FULL SUPPORT FROM HIM BY COURT ORDER AND BLOCK HIS FUTURE MARRIAGE. Of all contemptible arrangements, this is the worst—and no woman with a spark of pride or decency would have any part in it.

Support for minor children—YES! And that support should extend to every State in the union without a cent of expense to the mother. SUPPORT, ALSO, FOR THOSE WIVES WHO BECOME INVALIDS DURING THE TERM OF MARRIAGE. BUT NOT ONE CENT OF SUPPORT TO ANY HEALTHY, CHILDLESS WOMAN! Of all vicious mortals, there is none lower than the woman who tries to extract CASH DIVIDENDS FROM LOVE.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Sometimes on rainy nights or when the mood is just right I sponsor myself a Bing Crosby concert. I am the producer, the director, and the audience. I am the only one there. I have about 60 Crosby records and from this list I make up a program I want to hear. And Crosby sings what I tell him to, because on this program I'm boss and he's just another guy taking orders.

This is really the ideal way to enjoy any concert, because you get just what you want and nothing else. And it's so simple. You put the records on the phonograph; you sink back into the softest cushion you can find; you listen.

And when you listen to 60 sides of Crosby you get about the most gratifying cross-section of American music in existence. Imagine a program that takes in Stephen Foster, touches the spirituals, dallies under Hawaiian skies, and swings up through the modern melodies. It's something you remember a long, long time.

* * *

ONE of the things I like best about Crosby is his superb enunciation. If you doubt this, put on any of his records and watch him play around with syllables. And I go for that "barbershop" note he injects into his delivery now and then. To get this he has to reach right down into the good earth. But he gets it. And when he does it's something special.

In my files of Crosbiana are five or six special numbers that preface and close all programs. These are the "musts," the ones you like to hear over and over. And when I come to them I make old Bing sing encore after encore.

It may be that you would like to know what these special numbers are. All right: first comes "Darling Nelly Gray." I think it is a real pity that Stephen Foster will never hear his song as Crosby sings it. To me he gives it something of the utter sensitiveness that Foster must have felt when he composed it.

Then come "My Old Kentucky Home" and "Sweet Leilani." And after that, "Adeste Fidelis," "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," and "A Fine Romance."

* * *

WHEN Crosby recorded "A Fine Romance," he made it with Dixie Lee, his wife, and it is perhaps the cutest thing he ever did. But for some inexplicable reason they never made another record together, and I wonder why. As only a man and his wife could, they clowned deliciously through the lyrics, just as Lynn Fontanne and Alfred Lunt, who are man and wife, clown through their appearances together on the stage.

Now take "Adeste Fidelis." You think a hymn is out of place between modern numbers, do you? Sugar, you're wrong. Listen to him sing it. He gives it something it never got from a church choir. And "Sweet Leilani"—but I'm all out of adjectives. All I can say is I've worn out three duplicates, which gives you an idea.

And now I've got to sponsor myself another concert. There's only one justification for a concert, you know, and that's because it entertains. And it always does if Crosby sings. That's his business. Like the darkies in the song, that's why he was born.

HEART ON HER SLEEVE

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY

(Copyright, 1938)

CHAPTER XII

"I love you for that, Sunny. But of course you would be that way. Don't worry, we'll find some way to help Molly."

Sunny looked up surprised.

"You're—not angry with her?"

Mignon smiled through her tears.

"Why of course not, the poor little thing! Don't you think I know she wouldn't do anything really wrong? She — she's just frightened."

"But how about Farro?" Sunny's face grew more grim. "How did she get mixed up with him?"

Mignon's eyes brimmed with tears again.

"I—don't know. I—I'm so disappointed in Charlie. He—was so much fun. I—can't believe he is a member of the Rafetti gang."

Jed assured her that he was. He told of his meeting with Lynne Banker, his reporter friend, and Mignon was convinced. She said bitterly, "All last evening he tried to get me to elope with him. He —wanted to marry me."

"You — don't care for him-" Sunny asked fearfully.

"I — thought — I did—a little," Mignon admitted unhappily. "He —is terribly fascinating."

* * *

Jed sat silently, hoping against hope that he'd get a chance to even the score a little by giving Charlie Farro a good horsewhipping. That's what he'd get back home in Kentucky, and Jed was still mountaineer enough to believe it was good medicine for a man who trifled with a woman's affections.

Hearing Mignon's plans to help Moleen, listening to her defense of the younger girl, Jed felt his belief in women grow with leaps and bounds. It was amazing to him that not one word of complaint for the embarrassing situation Moleen had put her in crossed Mignon's lips.

Jed, whose old-fashioned ideals were as deeply ingraved as his love for the mother who had taught them to him, felt a great pride in knowing a girl like Mignon Laine. He looked at her out of new eyes, and saw in her face a beauty that left him breathless with his discovery.

It was then he realized what lay back of his deep dislike, from the very first, of Charlie Farro. For he knew, as surely as he knew he was alive, that as long as Mignon Laine lived, no other girl would exist for him.

* * *

Tom Laine was greatly provoked when an assistant announced just before noon that his daughter was wating in the front office and wanted to see him on an important mission that couldn't wait.

He got up and strode in furiously to meet Mignon.

"How dare you come down here and get mixed up in this thing?" he began heatedly.

The distress in his daughter's face stopped him.

"Father," she said quietly, "I had to come. Please don't be angry."

"Suppose the newspapers find out you're interested in that O'Dare girl—that she's been living in our home, making a fool out of me. Using you!"

Mignon waved him aside wearily.

"What does that matter? I think you're being very melodramatic."

Laine was amazed at his daughter's impertinence.

"Melodramatic! Because I'm trying to protect your name? Trying to keep you from getting mixed up with gangsters and convicts?"

"Dad," Mignon put an urgent hand on her father's arm, "will you let me talk with Molly—just a few minutes. I know if you do, she will tell me the truth."

"Truth!" the district attorney snorted. "We've spent hours trying to get her to admit the truth —that she knew Farro was the brains behind the Rafetti gang. She's hard as a rock."

"She's probably scared to death, poor child." Tears gathered in Mignon's eyes. "But I know she'll tell me the truth."

Laine, who had seldom seen his daughter cry, was stopped by the distress in her eyes.

"Very well," he said shortly. "I'll give you ten minutes."

* * *

He turned on his heel and strode out. In a moment Moleen opened the door. Mignon held out her arms. The younger girl ran into them with a strangled little cry.

"Oh, Mignon!" she choked childishly, "I didn't think—you'd ever want to see me again after what I've done to you."

Mignon took her by the hand and led her over to a bench in the corner.

"Now," she fought to control her own emotions, "we've only a little time, father says. Start from the beginning and tell me all about it. I'm going to help you."

Moleen leaned against the wall, her face a deathly white. She said hopelessly, "I've told the truth, Minnie. But they won't believe me — they won't believe me!"

"What have you told them? Tell me."

"I had no more idea that Farro was the head of the Rafetti gang than you had. I swear it. I've never liked him, and I've always been afraid of him—in a way. But I didn't know he was a crook. You—you believe that I really was sick when your car struck me, don't you?"

"Oh, yes," Mignon nodded. "Nothing could convince me you framed an accident to get into our house. I know how ill and weak you were when I picked you up."

"I—I'm glad you don't doubt that," Moleen smiled crookedly "Your father is so sure it was all planned."

"Dad has a nasty job. He is so anxious to prove Farro's connection with Rafetti that he would go to any lengths to do it. What else did you tell him, dear?"

"That—that Charlie threatened me—I was afraid not to introduce him to you." Molene dropped her head, biting her lip. "That's what makes me so ashamed, Minnie. So — terribly ashamed. You'd been so good. But when he said he'd tell you about my brother Pat I—I couldn't bear it."

"I understand." Mignon covered Moleen's hand with her own.

"I thought," the younger girl went on, "that after you knew me better, I'd have a chance to help Pat. I planned to tell you all about it and then we would try to get your father to investigate Pat's case. I was—so sure he was innocent. I still am, in spite of all they've told me."

It seemed very logical to Mignon, and looking into Moleen's anxious face she could not doubt that she was telling the truth. But convincing her father was another matter.

Moleen sighed heavily.

"If—only I hadn't been such a coward! It would have been so much better if I'd told you how I felt about Charlie that first night. But I didn't think he meant any harm. I—just thought he wanted to know you because you are rich and in society. He said it would help his business. I thought he meant his law business."

Mignon said grimly, "He tried all last evening to get me to elope with him. I can see why now. But I don't blame you, Molly. Pleae believe I don't."

"A fine way I've paid you back for all the nice things you've done for me! I'd probably be dead by now if you hadn't taken care of me. I—I hate myself!"

"Don't say that." Mignon put an arm around her. "You mustn't be bitter. No matter what happens, I'll always be your friend. If I'd been in your place and you in mine, I probably would have been just as afraid to tell the truth as you were."

Moleen said wonderingly, "I don't understand why you are so good to me — after what I've done."

"It so happens," Mignon smiled sadly, "that I love you very dearly, honey. It's as though I had a younger sister, and she were in great trouble."

* * *

Tears came to Moleen's eyes and rolled down her cheeks—the first ones she had been able to shed.

"If—if I can only make it up to you! C-can I do something to undo all the wrong I've done."

"You haven't done any harm to me," Mignon said quickly. "You must get that silly idea out of your mind. Oh, I wish I knew how we could find proof that you're telling the truth, so we could convince father."

The door opened and Tom strode in, followed by a stout man with a red face. Both Mignon and Moleen got up. Mignon placed an arm around the younger girl and faced her father.

"Well," Laine said briskly, "what did you find out, Mignon?"

"That she is telling the truth." Mignon was very pale. "You've got to believe her."

* * *

The district attorney did not look quite so stern as he had a few moments before. He turned to the red-faced stranger.

"Is this the girl, Corrigan?" Laine asked.

The man nodded.

"Absolutely. I'd know her anywhere. And her voice too. It's the same voice."

Mignon sat down weakly.

"What—is it Dad? Who is this man?"

Moleen kept her bearings, but her heart was thumping.

"Detective Corrigan from the police department. He's been watching Farro for two weeks—everywhere he went."

Mignon jumped up. "You've seen us together?"

"Every step you've taken," the detective said proudly. "That first night out at the Wayside Inn when Charlie was introduced to you I was sitting at the next table."

"Then," Mignon face brightened, "you must know something that will clear Molly? That will help her, at least."

The detective shifted his rank cigar to the other side of his mouth and stuck his hands in his pockets.

"It's all right to tell her now, I guess," Laine suggested.

Corrigan grinned at Moleen.

"Remember the night you looked up and saw Charlie Farro trying to catch your eye at the Wayside Inn?"

Moleen's eyes opened wide.

"Yes."

"Well, remember you went down the walk and met him and you two went and sat on a bench and talked?"

"Why, of course. I remember every word."

Laine broke in.

"Tell me a little of what was said."

* * *

Moleen repeated, almost word for word, the conversation she had with Farro. How she had refused at first to present him to Mignon, and how he had accused her of having a millionaire boy friend and she had been compelled to tell him she was Mignon's secretary.

When she had finished Corrigan beamed.

"What did I tell you, Mr. Laine?"

"How," Mignon said wonderingly, "did you know all this?"

Corrigan seemed to grow two inches in height.

"Me?" he asked proudly. "When I tail a guy I stick to him like a plaster. I was right behind a tree not three feet away, and heard every word both of 'em said."

REOPENS FIGHT ON BEETLE HERE

Department of Agriculture Sets Out 400 Traps for Japanese Insects.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture was ready today to start its third annual battle against the Japanese beetle in the Mansfield area.

Under the supervision of the federal bureau of entomology and plant quarantine, about 400 green and white metal traps will be placed at widely scattered places in the city to determine whether the beetle is present.

The traps will be placed chiefly in residential sections, at homes where permission to locate them has been granted. They will be visited at frequent intervals by an inspector working under the direction of Jack J. MacBride, Columbus. Traps have been placed here for the past two summers.

The Japanese beetle, which spends most of its life in the soil, is a pest of increasing importance, according to federal entomologists, and unless it is eradicated it will cause heavy loss to plants, flowers and fruit vines. The larva of the insect feeds on plant roots while the adult damages the foliage of flowers and fruit trees and vines.

The adult is about one-fourth inch long with a green head and brown wing covers. Its first appearance in this section would be on grape leaves or the blossoms of roses, entomologists said.

ROTARY SPEAKER TRACES START OF DEMOCRACY TO 15TH CENTURY

Democracy as a system of government is the outgrowth of a slowly developed social and economic system under which people rebelled against the autocratic dictatorships common to earlier stages of civilization, according to Dr. John R. Williams of Wooster, speaker at Tuesday's meeting of the Mansfield Rotary club, held at Westbrook Country club.

Dr. Williams, past president of the Malone, N. Y., Rotary club and present member of the board of directors of the Wooster club, spoke on the subject, "The Coming Struggle for Freedom" and made reference to the present economic transition and change in the structure of civilization.

He traced the beginnings of Democracy from the fifteenth century and showed how the principles of self government became a part of the early colonizing of the United States. An alert citizenship, participating in elections and continuing to be interested in the conduct of public affairs throughout the year, was held to be essential to the successful functioning of a democracy.

Carl H. Henkel was program chairman. R. D. Iden, newly elected president of the Mansfield club, presided. He announced appointment of Thomas Scott as sergeant at arms for the coming year, and Jack R. Balliett to continue as editor of the Amplifier, club bulletin.

Committee chairmen for the year will be: Club service, Louis Hartman; vocational service, Rev. Paul Hollingshead; community service, Harold W. Arlin; international service, William M. Weldon; classification, Sherman Glessner; attendance, Robert Remy; boys' work, C. G. Hillier; crippled children, W. C. Mead; fellowship, John Jones; program, J. H. Gongwer; public relations, A. M. Colby; Rotary education, M. Dale Ward; student loan, W. L. Miller; sports, Herbert S. Jones.

Weekly meetings are to be held at the country club during July and August.

BALANCE DROPS

County's General Fund Lowest in Recent Months.

Richland county began the month of July with a general fund balance of only $8,256, the lowest figure in recent months, according to the financial statement compiled by Auditor Norman L. Wolfe.

The county had more than $24,000 in the general fund at the beginning of June, but the expenditures during the month exceeded receipts by $16,261. Receipts totaled $12,745, and the county paid out $29,006.

The United States is now exporting more than 300 times as much corn and 8,000 times as much wheat as it is importing, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration reports.

Mother's Wants Prevent Marriage

By VIRGINIA LEE

There are parents who make their children selfish by giving them everything they possibly can and demanding nothing. And there are parents who expect their children to give up practically everything for them.

Curiously, the parents who give the least to their children in the way of education and other advantages, are often the ones who demand most from them. It is the wise parent who strikes a happy medium.

A young girl, 18, writes to ask my advice She is engaged to a boy of 20 and they want to marry. However, the boy's mother thinks he should help her pay for a car and refurnish her home. The mother has a husband who is working — the boy's stepfather. She has two young boys at home, the boy's half-brothers

SARAH is willing for her boy friend to help his mother pay for the car but not to buy new furniture. She wants to know what I think of the matter.

I think it will not hurt to wait for at least a year before you are married, Sarah. Then your boy friend will be of age. He can help his mother during that time if he wishes, but I do not think she should expect him to keep on getting her things that are not absolutely necessary and let his own plans wait It is not fair to him or to you. I think you should tell him how you feel.

AILEEN is a girl "well in my twenties," and "as my parents were too strict with me in my earlier days, I just did not get around to make friends with young crowds. Now, when I would like to meet some one to my liking, it just seems I can't make the grade."

She recently met a young man who is in town only for the summer, and he took her home from a dance, but has paid no more attention to her. He is the kind of person she would enjoy, and she doesn't know why he hasn't been to see her again. Maybe, she suggests, he has a girl in his home town. Do I think she should try to see him again and ask him what the trouble is? Should she try to see him and say goodbye when he leaves? Would it be out of place for her to give him a souvenir of the summer?

Probably the young man was only casually interested in you, Aileen, and I don't believe you should try to see him and ask him why he hasn't been to see you or to say goodbye, and certainly not to give him a "souvenir." If you are thrown in his company, it would be perfectly proper to show him that you feel very friendly toward him

I realize it is hard for a girl whose parents have kept her away from young people to get into the social circle later on. A change of scene often is advisable. The next best thing is to go where young people are, observe how the popular young folk act, study yourself and try to develop your own possibilities and trust that the future will bring you in contact with the type of people you can enjoy and who will be attracted to you.

Tall Girls Can Appear Shorter

By JULIET SHELBY
Central Press Writer on Beauty

If you are a tall girl you have probably always worried about your height. The old schoolroom tag about "bean pole" may still rankle, even though you have grown to lunch at childish taunts. These sort of ideas belong to the "don't give it another thought" department nowadays. Because the girl with some stature is not only coming into her own with the boys, but it's absolutely necessary to have that height to be able to belong to the show girl or modeling professions. So now is the time to stand up to your size and make it an advantage instead of a detriment

There are a few pointers however, that are quite helpful if you wish to appear a bit shorter than your real height.

First, always arrange your hair so that it is flat on top. You can go in for waves and curls on the sides as your taste or style dictates.

Hats come under the same rule. Don't wear high crowns or witch's hats Shallow crowns and fairly wide brims are more in your line, and if the brims are of the drooping variety they are twice as good The lines point downward instead of up.

Oval and square cut necklines are height reducing, as are collars of contrasting colors and jabots that reach to the waistline Raglan and full sleeves are also very good for you. Here you have a decided advantage over most women. Try long cuffs of a shade to match your collar if you think your arms seem long. You probably don't have to worry about adding bulk to your silhouette as the short and medium woman does, so you can indulge yourself in exaggerated cuffs and collars. They will shorten your lines.

Avoid Plain, Straight Models.

Remember in choosing your frocks that plain, straight models are the worst offenders, so skip them Your dresses should reduce your height One way of doing this is to have a contrasting horizontal band set in your blouse or to go in for horizontal stripes. A skirt that is different in color from the top of your dress is also an excellent idea Wide belts of contrasting colors will also minimize your tallness. On the subject of skirts no really hard and fast rules can be made. But don't go in for extremes. If very long skirts are in fashion keep your dress a little shorter. When the knee-length skirt is the thing, wear yours a little bit longer than your shorter sister.

Stand up straight and be proud of your stature. Don't forget that you tall girls are the perfect "clothes horses" of today's fashion parade.

Red spiders are very much in evidence this season, and do much damage to evergreen trees and shrubs. When evergreens of any kind begin to show brown or red spots, the presence of this pest can be suspected. Daily spraying with a strong stream of water from the hose is helpful. A more effecive plan is to dust the plants with a mixture of dry sulphur, and dry tobacco dust in equal parts. The sulphur should be the kind purchased in seed stores and not the kind sold in drug stores. The first dusting should be done at this time, and repeated three or four times in the course of the season If the number of trees or shrubs to be dusted is small, an ordinary hand bellows or dusting gun can be used

Marriage Meddlers

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

HANK'S VOICE was a tortured wail as, after Dicky's planned inquisition into his health, he asked if there were anything the matter with him that would keep him from going back to school.

My husband had performed the task given him in wonderful fashion, I told myself, even while I found myself instinctively and unreasoningly resenting the apparent cruelty to his nephew in his rigorous questioning But Hank was certainly ready for the suggestion that he visit a specialist, and I knew that Dicky had so frightened him about his general health that he would have no idea of the real reason why we were sending him to the eminent authority upon neurotic complexes whom Katherine had secured for us

"I hope not, Hank, I'm sure," Dicky said in kindly tones. "But I have to tell you that some of your symptoms are not just what I would like. However, we're not going to cross any bridges until we come to them, nor are we going to monkey around with this thing."

He broke off as Katherine came back into the room.

Timely Entrance.

Ah, Katrina'" Dicky said easily "You must be clairvoyant or I must be psychic. I was just going to send for you.

"Suppose we both take a bow," she countered lightly "What is it you want of me?"

"Why, I've been putting young Hank here through a pretty stiff physical examination, and there are some things I don't like so well," Dicky said. "I want to check up on them. You know all the big men. Who's the best heart and nerve specialist in town?"

Katherine's lips twitched ever so slightly but her voice was gravely considering.

"I think, all things considered, that Dr. is the best man for your purpose," she said after a pause, naming the brilliant authority upon neurotic complexes from whom she had just secured a promise to see Hank the next morning

Dicky Is Cautious.

"Let me see!" Dicky replied "The only time I can depend on is tomorrow forenoon Hank can you go to the city with me--tom—tomorrow morning?"

He shot a quick anxious glance at the small boys as he spoke, for I knew he did not wish to face the painful scene which would be sure to follow his announcement of departure when he had only just arrived. I grimly told myself that man-like he would leave me the task of telling Junior and Roderick upon the morrow after he had gone

But mercifully the small boys were so absorbed in a game of checkers that they had heard nothing of the colloquy, and Hank answered the amended question quickly, but with anxiety.

"I can go anywhere or do anything you want, Uncle Dicky, at any time," he said earnestly.

Dicky clapped him heartily upon the shoulder

"That's the stuff," he said "And don't worry, lad We'll have you all right again in no time. How about it Katrina? Do you think you can get an appointment for us tomorrow morning before lunch?"

"I don't know," Katherine answered as dubiously as if the query were a surprise instead of being cut and dried. "He's a pretty busy man, you know However, I'll try my best, and I happen to know him pretty well. I'll go now and try his various points of contact by telephone, if you'll excuse me."

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, July 7.

A day of much definite advancement toward placing the fortunes upon a solid basis is presaged from the predominant astral influence. This may come about not only through diligence and hard work, but by the sudden precipitancy of a surprising and wholly unforeseen nature This may be an adventure or a romance which may call for a long journey, with new surroundings and contacts. Speculation and chance are under fair stimulation for success

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of surprising developments, with adventure and romance following the breaking away of old and irksome conditions. New environs, associations and interests loom.

A child born on this day may have a rather spectacular career, with romance, adventure and speculative enterprise taking it far from the place of its birth and into the limelight.

Household Hints

Menu Hint.

Roast Lamb Delmonico Potatoes
Green Peas Beet Salad
Strawberry Cream Coffee

The strawberry cream may be made in an ordinary freezer with salt and ice instead of in the mechanical refrigerator.

Delmonico Potatoes.

Cut pared potatoes into cubes and boil until tender. Drain, combine with a cream sauce in which has been stirred one-third cup of grated mild cheese. Place in a baking dish, sprinkle the top with buttered bread crumbs and bake in a moderate oven 350 deegres, until browned.

Nutritive Juices.

Orange and tomato juice lose much of their nutritive value after they have been exposed to the air for several hours. Consequently it is a good plan to prepare them just before serving—to buy them in cans which hold an amount that will be quickly consumed after they are opened.

Two New Sandwiches.

Banana-Raisin: Mix one-half cup raisins with one crushed banana. Salt to taste. Spread between buttered slices of bread. Mayonnaise may be added to mixture if desired. Makes four to six sandwiches.

Jim-Dandy: Spread slice of bread with cream cheese and cover with slices of banana. Butter a second slice of bread, spread with tart jam. Put sandwich together.

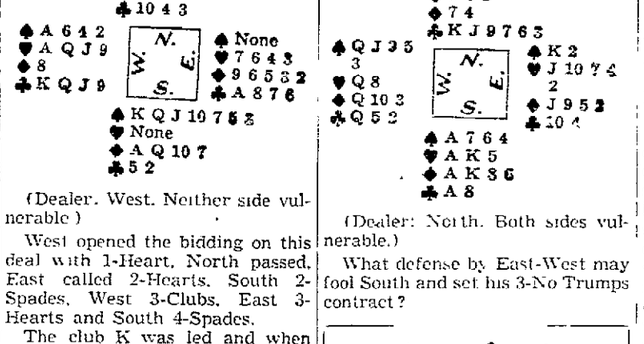
GOOD NIGHT RUFF!

If the opponent who wants to ruff a particular suit cannot get his partner into the lead, the chances for the ruff go a-glimmering Drawing the defenders' trumps is the surest way to prevent a ruff, but when that cannot be done in time, it still may be possible to knock the entry out of the dangerous adversary's hand, or blank your own holding so that you can ruff his entry.



(Dealer. West. Neither side vulnerable.)

West opened the bidding on this deal with 1-Heart, North passed, East called 2-Hearts. South 2-Spades, West 3-Clubs, East 3-Hearts and South 4-Spades.

The club K was led and when East signaled high, indicating the A, West switched to his singleton diamond, expecting to get right in with the spade A. A club then to East would have brought the return of a diamond for a ruff and the setting of the contract.

The declarer, being fully aware of what West had in mind, decided to thwart him if possible He won the diamond 8 lead with the K in dummy, and played the heart K feeling sure from the bidding that West would have to win the trick. On this South tossed his losing club. It was then too late to put East in the lead, for South was able to ruff the next club lead.

THEATER

THE withdrawal of Isa Miranda from the cast of "Zaza" brings up the question of whether or not imported stars are worth the trouble. The Italian star was in Hollywood on pay and in training for eight months She lasted two days on the first picture set Della Lind joined M-G-M in 1936 and so far has appeared in a Laurel and Hardy comedy. Milza Korjus was two years waiting for her first chance in "The Great Waltz." Ilona Massie is supposed to play opposite Nelson Eddy in "Love Carnival," but she hasn't made a screen appearance since "Rosalie." Rose Stradna was lovely as the Robinson's wife in "The Last Gangster" but hasn't been heard from since Simone Simon has had a terrific publicity build-up—for what? Lovely little Franceska Gaal lingers on and judgment on Annabella is still pending Danielle Darrieux looks like a comer, but so have others Luise Rainer is the sole hit of recent years.

* * *

Rainer's Latest.

Which reminds one that her latest picture—just completed — comes to the Ohio for the last half of the week It is "The Toy Wife," which is a modernized and Americanized version of Sarah Bernhardt's old stage play "Mlle. Frou Frou," and bears a basic resemblence to the old melodrama, "East Lynne." Frou Frou, whose nickname came from the rustle of her silk skirts and her frivolous disposition, was one of those dangerous women with beauty and brains but neither heart nor conscience. Her selfishness, jealousy and lack of principle bring about the ruin of several lives, including her own, the death of one of her lovers and that of her father. Melvyn Douglas plays the dignified Louisiana attorney, while Robert Young is the roistering swordsman and gambler.

Society Gangster.

A young couple bent on matrimony are innocently drawn into a net of circumstantial evidence which points to their guilt in a murder, in "Law of The Underworld" which opens today at the Madison. But their loyalty to a gangster leads to a climax in which they are cleared and he faces trial for his life Chester Morris son of one of the great actors of the American theater and himself a player with ability which has been overshadowed by his "typing" as a gangster, plays the leading role of the society gangster. Anne Shirley is the girl and Richard Bond the boy. Some of the "better" screen bad men, such as Eduardo Ciannelli and Paul Guilfoyle are in the cast. Walter Abel is also a supporting player

Historical Thriller.

Against the backgroud of real incident, "The Plainsman," current attraction at the Majestic, tells the fiction embellished story of Wild Bill Hickok and Calamity Jane, who were familiar to every boy who once poured over the "Wild West" stories that were popular a quarter of a century ago. Wild Bill was once an outlaw who later turned to the law and became one of the great sheriffs of the wild and woolley west The picture tells of his friendship with Buffalo Bill and his strange romance with Calamity Jane, who could handle a gun with the best of them Gary Cooper plays Will Bill with a thrilling sincerity while Jean Arthur plays Calamity. The second attraction is an early Marx Brothers comedy

Plots and Counterplots.

Government secrets intelligence officers, beautiful foreign women and foreign powers that work secretly, make up the action of "Invisible Enemy," one of the Ritz' attractions today and Thursday. Alan Marshall and Herbert Mundin are the Intelligence department officers. Tala Birell and Mady Correll are the two women involved in this story of plots and counter plots with C. Huntly Gordon as the unscrupulous foreign agent An electric chair in a private home, which can be remotely operated, is one of the features that provides suspense. Gloria Stuart and Michael Whalen bring a bright and belligerent phase of matrimony to the screen in "Change of Heart."

CHISELERS AND POLITICS HIT BY RELIEF PLAN

Program Now Before Davey Would Prosecute Those Illegally Getting Aid.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Elimination of relief chiseling and protection of clients from political coercion are the chief aims of the new relief administration bill now awaiting Gov. Martin L. Davey's approval.

The state relief director and the state auditor are given virtually unlimited powers in dealing with chiseling. Any relief client found accepting relief when not entitled to it may be cut off the rolls and forced to return sums illegally obtained. They also are subject to $100 fine and six months' imprisonment for making false statements to get relief aid.

The same penalties apply to any person connected with the relief administration who knowingly makes false statements in order to list a person on relief rolls, and to persons or firms giving cash on relief orders.

Intended to prevent administration of relief from becoming entwined in politics, the new law would impose a maximum fine of $100 and six months' imprisonment for any official or employe of a relief administration attempting to influence a client to vote for any candidate.

Would Get Credit Rating.

Another new phase of relief administration would be the authority of the state auditor to purchase credit ratings of those receiving or applying for aid, to assist independent investigations which he may choose to make. A sum of $100,000 was voted by the legislature to the state auditor to investigate individual relief clients.

On certification by the auditor that a relief client is not entitled to aid, he would be removed from the list immediately. The auditor also must audit all relief obligations before the money is paid. He also must withhold funds from any county until receiving notice from the state relief director that the county and other local relief authorities have complied with all requirements.

The relief director would have authority to withhold distribution of state funds until local authorities have complied with his regulations, in furnishing whatsoever information required by him. If the local authorities are dissatisfied with his rulings, they may appeal to a board composed of the state auditor, treasurer and superintendent of the budget.

Aliens, in order to obtain relief, must furnish authorities with complete data concerning their entry into this country. If an alien has entered illegally, he would be denied aid.

All relief checks must be called for in person, unless the state auditor deems it impractical or the recipient is unable to call in person. Each client must restate his financial condition under oath every three months.

The relief director, who would function for nine months, would receive a salary of $400 a month. He could have not more than two assistants at maximum salaries of $200 a month. Other employes would be limited to $150 a month. Total local administrative costs would be limited to 12 per cent of the amount spent for relief.

PLAN RALLY FOR TAFT AT TEA

Richland Republican Women Entertain Campaign Workers.

A group of approximately 15 Republican women in Mansfield entertained Mrs. Marie Curry and Mrs. Pearl Boli, of Canton, campaigners for Robert Taft for senator, at a tea Tuesday afternoon at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Purpose of the meeting was to organize a group in the county to sponsor Taft's appearance here for a talk before the August primary, Glenn L. Bierly, county G. O. P. executive chairman, said. No date has been set for the rally.

Bierly added that the group would not be affiliated with the Republican central committee, which endorsed Judge Arthur Day of Cleveland for the senatorial nomination several weeks ago.

holders more time to realize a profit on their $1,000 permits, and termed the present ordinance unfair, because it allowed holders of less costly permits to remain open the same hours, without the expense of night club entertainment.

The ordinance setting closing hours was passed in January, 1935, but was not strictly enforced until last December. Shortly after enforcement was ordered, and Police Chief Meade K. Bates instructed to see that the hours were strictly observed, permit holders, acting then as individuals, sought to have the ordinance revised, and their petition referred to the same committee that is now considering the new petition. After lengthy study of the problem, during which they found that the county's three judges and numerous church groups were opposed to any extension, the committee reported adversely on the petition.

MILK ORDINANCE UP FOR DEBATE

Producers to Air Differences Over Rigid Requirements at Meeting Monday.

Richland county milk producers will meet Monday night July 11, at the courthouse to discuss their differences over the enforcement of the Mansfield board of health's milk ordinance, Dale M. Dohner, manager of the Richland County Milk Producers association, said today.

Called by the board of directors of the association at the request of a group of producers who oppose the ordinance, the session will serve to bring a better understand between the opposing groups of county producers, Dohner said.

M. R. Moomaw, manager of the Stark county producers, has been invited to speak at the meeting. Clarence Mowry, president of the association, will preside.

A number of the 235 producers in the association and independent producers have protested against the rigid sanitation requirements of the board of health and have asked that the association start legal action to enjoin the board from enforcing its rules.

At a previous meeting, the association directors refused to enter into the fight against the ordinance.

HOLDS COUNTY OFFICERS PAID FUNDS TO WIVES

Examiner Says $28,800 Due From Pike Officials for Illegal Spending.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Payment for unrendered services, interest in official contracts, and payment of private telephone calls by public officials swelled to $28,805 findings for recovery by State Examiner W. H. Howland against Pike county officials and others in a report filed with the state inspection bureau today.

Former Common Pleas Judge George D. Nye, Democratic political leader of the county, was asked to return $939 which allegedly was paid by the county for the judge's private long distance telephone conversations to politicians and others.

Numerous calls were said to have been made to Democratic State Chairman Francis Poulson. Among other politicians allegedly called were John F. Nolan of Steubenville, Dr. Reuben Hilty of Toledo, Albert Horstman of Dayton and Walter F. Heer of Columbus. Several calls were listed to Pete Stinchcomb; warehouseman for the state liquor department.

Must Pay $350.

The former judge and his mother, Mrs. Cresse Nye, were called upon to repay the county $350 for a 60-foot steel bridge sold to the county allegedly through negotiations by the jurist.

The examiner developed that the bridge had been purchased by George B. Nye, father of the ex-judge and former political leader of the county, in 1924 for $50 from the Ross county commissioners. The sale to Poke county was made in April 1936.

The examiner said the bridge was used on a private road to the ex-judge's summer home and that when Lake White was filled with water the bridge was partly submerged. Judge Nye was the chief promoter of the lake.

Examiner Howland said he found the bridge dismantled on the Lake White company's property, partly covered with weeds. He said the county engineer told him that only a small piece of the bridge had been used by the county for repair work.

A finding for recovery of $4,850 was made against Edith Pennisten, wife of H. O. Pennisten, clerk of courts, who allegedly was paid as a clerk in the office. The examiner said he could find no evidence, however, of her having done any work.

Similar findings were made against Edith Dixon, wife of County Recorder George Dixon for $2,875; Aulta Sheridan, wife of County Engineer W. L. Sheridan, for $1,375, and Mrs. Mabel Blair Waugh, sister of Probate Judge William H. Acord, for $1,200.

For having interest in contracts, the following were ordered to return the sums listed: Forest Roberts, member of the Soldiers' Relief commission, $5,095; Clarence Vallery, members of the Waverly rural district board of education, $2,112, and Peter and J. A. Rapp, for $2,239. J. A. Rapp, county treasurer, was part owner of a company furnishing road guard rail to the county.

TIE VOTE KILLS GAS MEASURE IN SECOND READING

Shelby Council Fails to Give Three-Year Straight Rate Ordinance Majority.

SHELBY—Councilman Charles Swanger's proposed three-year straight rate gas contract ordinance came to an untimely end last night, when it failed to get by a second reading.

The vote was 2-2, with Councilman Kenneth Rothlisberger absent. Swanger voted for passage to a third reading, as did Councilman John Chew. Opposing it were Councilmen Chester Bell and C. E. Morris. Shelby's charter provides that a measure must have a majority vote.

Thus, after more than two months of discussion, council now has no rate ordinance before it, and consumers will continue to pay 71 cents per thousand—the rate per thousand on a basis of 5,000 feet used per month under the fifth year schedule of an expired five-year contract—until a new ordinance is approved.

Bell explained his negative vote by saying he was "afraid the gas company (Ohio Fuel Gas company) would appeal such a low rate to the utilities commission."

Cites Federal Aid.

Swanger countered with the assertion that he thought "the rates are not low enough, since the federal government has been given power to investigate interstate rates." He referred to the bill recently passed by congress and approved by President Roosevelt under which the federal power commission has authority to determine the fairness of interstate gas rate charges. Ohio Fuel bases its rates on the price it pays an affiliated company in West Virginia.

The 68-cent ordinance passed its first reading. Last night, Kenneth Gallant, Shelby manager of the company, told councilmen the company would not agree to the ordinance, which is higher than the recently enacted Mansfield ordinance, and to which the company has not as yet said it would not agree.

Councilmen did not indicate last night what their next step might be, it then seemed little likelihood that Swanger's ordinance would be reintroduced.
